Introduction

This book was first published in 2005. It was based on research I had conducted in 1998 as well as my travels throughout planet Earth. The original version of this book was banned in the state of New York by the unanimous vote of the New York State legislature. The ban was signed into law by Governor Eliot Spitzer in March of 2008 and still stands. This new version has a new cover and introduction only.

The economic landscape of planet Earth has changed because of this book. The US is now energy independent. We have enough oil in America to last 1,000 years. We have enough natural gas to last five thousand years. The United States is now the lowest cost producer of hydrocarbons, proteins, carbohydrates, fluff pulp, legumes, silicon, steel and minerals. We have the largest youth population in the OECD.

47,000,000 white babies have been born since 1998 due to the invention of the tabletop DVR. More white baby boys have been born than any time in the history of this nation. Massive social change, driven by the mothers of these white baby boys, will occur. The vast caste system set up by our oligarchy utilizing the National Security Act will soon end.

Paradigm Shifts

Probably the most misquoted philosopher in the last thirty years has been Thomas S. Kuhn. His book, The Structure Of Scientific Revolutions, quintessential to the understanding of how societies advance, is over utilized by the popular press and central banks to make it seem that any invention be it the thumbtack, roach spray, tax deductions or nuclear fission will cause human civilization to tectonically shift to a new era of prosperity. To be fair to Kuhn's perspicacity, human civilization rarely shifts. On the contrary it does shift when humans completely change their ways of life and thinking. Therefore to be precise, when human cognitive processes shift, then a paradigm shift actually occurs.

I am of the view that, as opposed to most management gurus, there are few paradigm shifts. Probably the two greatest paradigm shifts that have occurred during the course of human history are man's ability to communicate and animal husbandry. Contrary to what many scientists may say, western civilization has only repeated the same forms of social, technological and intellectual development that are the after effects of these two paradigm shifts from long ago. We are today doing what has been done for millions of years prior by formerly extant civilizations.

If you do not think so ask yourself if people traveled eons ago. Of course they did¹. And as they moved about they would need food, shelter, and water for their families as well as for their animals. All of this meant that there were roads, clothing, bedding, pillows, hotels, prepared meals, fuel, shoes, and furniture. They would also need a medium of exchange to obtain goods. Thus, there was always a need for finance. Caravans would also have to be able to protect themselves. Therefore, there was also a need for weapons.

Democracy, unique to the West in the 19th and 20th centuries, was pervasive in various forms in Africa, Australia, South America, North America and Asia². Feminism has existed ever since God first created women. Steam heat has existed for eons. So has brass forging. How trigonometry could have existed without algebra as a foundation is beyond me. Clearly, the Chinese and the Indians had mastered math, but the written evidence has been lost to the salty waters of antediluvian times and to the fires of oppressors long dead.

Towns and cities have always existed. Trade is a social function, on par with marriage and fatherhood. The urban grid layout, as well as aqueducts and sewers for cities have existed for eons. Powerful people have always engaged in the practices of human slavery and exploitation. Caste oriented structures exist throughout the world and preexist many indigenous tribal societies of today. Man has always wanted to sleep with the opposite sex. The old have always been jealous of the young and visa versa. The concepts of money and taxes (as well as interest and tax evasion) have existed even prior to the ancient Khmer ruins.

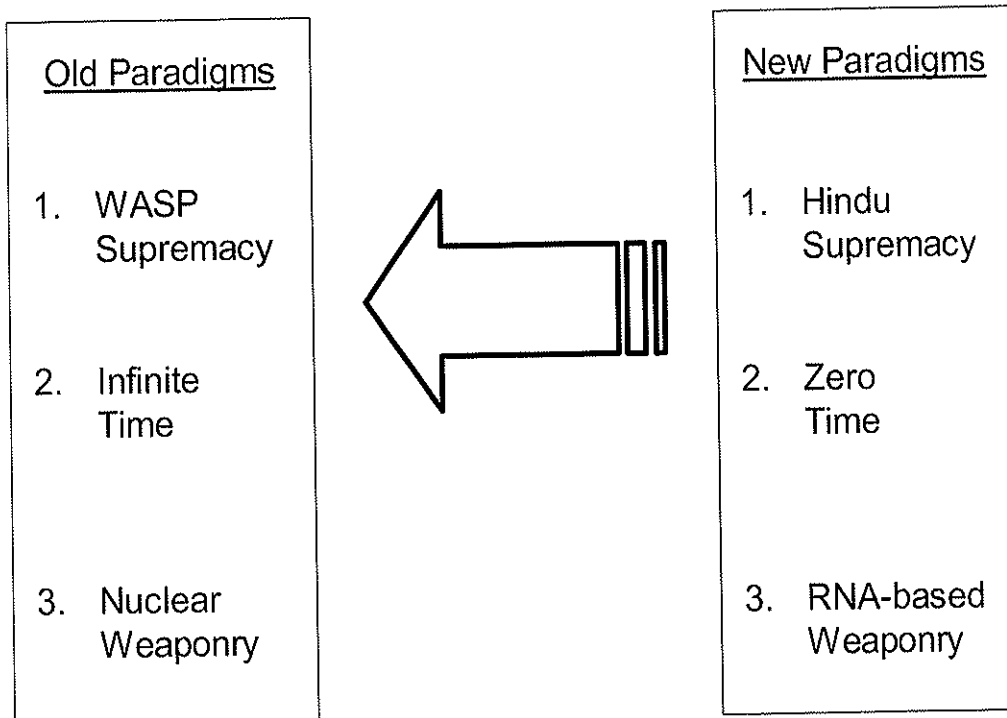

Since so much of what is happening today has happened before, we need to discern new paradigms from old historical patterns. There are three unique social forces that are occurring today that defy conventional thought patterns and will require Americans to understand and adapt quickly. All of these cultural shifts are being brought on by the use of the optical internet for communication. These are:

² For those who think America is the only place where everyone is equal, think again. In most tribal societies around the world, all members are equal.

- a) the end of America's time advantage
- b) the end of darkness in China and India
- and c) the end of WASP supremacy.

The Internet Changes Everything For Americans

By creating a universal platform based on qubits, optical internet technology will displace all white collar service workers in America by 2020. To coopt this and to facilitate the adoption of a caste system, America's education system and the Constitution will be changed, under the direction of the US military's admissions testing services. The Patriot Act was the first step. The new SAT® is the second step. Ultimately, caste systems take two generations to implement.

All three of these will be discussed at length within this volume, as well as in the two accompanying volumes of this series. You will not accept them readily. Understand that the general population, as a whole, cannot observe paradigm shifts. Likewise, few Americans would believe that we have implemented a caste system in the last thirty years because when one is in a caste system, one does not know it.

Contrary to what is written in endless diatribes about India's caste system, Indians for hundreds of years did not know that they were living in a caste system implemented over centuries to maintain Persian and Chinese hegemony. A caste system was needed to maintain the high returns of Chinese intellectual capital (for example, gun powder, porcelain, medicines, armaments, etc...) and to retard intellectual development among Hindus. Thus, it was necessary to slow down time.

Time could only be slowed down if you prevented knowledge transfer across caste divisions. Thus, the majority of Indians were kept illiterate for millennia. However, fringes of the population were fully aware of how the caste system was systematically implemented, as they were the gatekeepers for access to knowledge.

Time is closely approaching zero

Knowledge * Time = Cumulative Learning

Reworking the above equation, we get:

$$\text{Time} = \frac{\text{Cumulative Learning}}{\text{Knowledge}}$$

Knowledge can be instantly accessed by anyone regardless of wealth, race, or geography by utilizing the internet. This results in knowledge approaching infinity. Therefore, as knowledge approaches infinity, time approaches zero.

Caste systems prevent social and intellectual progress by retarding the rate of knowledge absorption.

Progress induces the acceleration of time. As time speeds up, those in power clearly have a vested interest in maintaining their hegemony over others.

Today, time in America is a critical component of every process of our day-to-day existence. But it no longer will be. The end of time to which I allude to means that the concept of time will quickly lose its relevance as a factor in our day-to-day existence. In essence, our brains are converting back to our earlier aboriginal existence where seasons, as opposed to seconds and hours and days, marked our lives.

Large corporations by actively accelerating time have encouraged moral decline in American society. Morality can only exist where man has plenty of time to make choices. Corporations can only deconstruct time if they can only dismantle the cornerstone of an extant civilization, the family unit. To say that American corporations have undermined the family unit is an understatement. Not only have American multinationals destroyed the African American family unit through affirmative incarceration and the active denigging (called reengineering by its practitioners) of business and educational processes, but they have also set their eyes on the surfeit amount of caucasian nuclear families to maintain their high financial returns in a monopsony environment.

As time approaches zero, and as members of a civilization no longer face legal repercussions for the time consequences of immorality, a civilization starts to decline and starts to take on aboriginal norms. Americans today engage in group-sexual activities, actively participate in the display of public nudity, and parade around in public revealing body piercings and animist tattoos. All they need are spears, shields and a large communal mat to reflect the various tribal groups of aboriginal India.

If we compare our day-to-day existence to aboriginal populations, we can see how time is quickly becoming irrelevant. A great didactic allegory is the old joke of the English sugar plantation owner trying to convince a bunch of aborigines to work on his plantation. The planter asked the men to cut cane for him. The three refused. Then he said that he would give them money. They asked him what money was. He told them that they could use it to buy things and eventually save for retirement. They asked him what retirement was. He replied that during that phase they would have saved enough and they would not have to work anymore. Then they quickly laughed amongst themselves. He asked them why they were laughing. They admonished him and reminded him that they were currently not working. They did not understand why they would have to work so that one day thirty years from now they would not have to work anymore.

The socialization process attributable to large-scale industry is what many Americans are quickly becoming aware of. Americans have eaten high carbohydrate diets to sustain our sugar and wheat barons for nearly a century. Rampant obesity and chronic disease are the result. Citizens have also paid so much in taxes to expand and maintain highways in the last twenty years at the expense of public education and universal health care. Unsustainable levels of imprisonment, abortion, divorce, heart disease and mental depression are the result of a society focused on the balance sheet of banks as opposed to the impermeable moral capital of a just society.

Many Baby Boomers are now realizing that they sped up time too much. Working for a few more dollars, and a few more vacation days now do not mean a hill of beans because their bodies are aging and the miracle drugs cannot stop the pain. As the United States ages, no antidepressant exists that will arrest its populace's high level of melancholy. Clearly, Americans have too much stress and pay too many taxes.

Moreover, few of us have any memory of how cruel rich old people are to the poor. Jealous of the flexibility and vitality of youth, they routinely castigate the young for doing the same things that they did when they were younger. Young men today cannot smoke, drink alcohol or even engage in sexual relations unless they are legally adults. Unfortunately, the elderly oligarchs of American society have extended teenage adolescence out into the late twenties.

Boomers have not realized yet how hard they will have to work in the future to keep our supertanker hedge fund economy growing³. In the next five years, three billion people will be joining the global workforce. This will result in the rapid reduction of wages and asset values for every person in the United States. This is called deflation. As India and China complete several large dams that will bring sustainable cheap electricity to nearly 500,000,000 human beings for the first time, there will be a complete end of darkness in these countries.

India, armed with a surfeit amount of babies, has abandoned all forms of white imperialism and has wholeheartedly rejected the caste system adopted by ³ Many Americans are quickly understanding that global nuclear war is the only option to prevent this. Such a war will kill at a minimum 1,000,000,000 people in the first six months. All civilization will end after ocean currents change. Within two years, nothing will exist on the surface of our planet again.

Mughal emperors and their stooge rajahs to rule them. Absent global nuclear war, Hindu supremacy is assured with rural electrification.

Cheap hydroelectric power will mean a rapid decline in birthrates and a rapid increase in education throughout India. A similar effect occurred when we in the United States completed the dams of the Tennessee Valley Authority, as well as the Hoover Dam.

The only way to survive the onslaught of all this competition is to work harder. But how can we work harder. And in what disciplines should we retrain. The advantage of picking up a new discipline is eroded by the fact that it takes years to learn a new trade. In that time span how will a person feed his family, or even himself. Thus, in just a few years, the time advantage of the oceans that separate us from the rest of the world will disappear. Soon, technical skills will no longer provide a competitive advantage for most American professionals.

Our nation is desperately trying to prevent lower castes (minorities) from entering the workforce and it is desperately trying to prevent higher castes (the WASP majority) from leaving the workforce. Consequently, our industry has rapidly denigrated its work processes to facilitate the adoption of a caste system.

A caste system has been encouraged by the Federal Reserve system's support of the commercial and state financing of one moral hazard after the other. As one financial bubble bursts after another, the middle class will be fleeced of its wealth and will face the likelihood of impoverishment. Ultimately, the end of time means that all interest bearing instruments will revert to a zero rate of interest over the long term.

The last four decades provided unprecedented opportunities for American business. Faced with a dearth of competition, many Western nations set up huge elaborate private education systems to prevent competition for wages for their WASP elite. Unfortunately, the internet that connects the computerized service economy is eroding the time advantage of vast investments in private university education. The concept of a liberal education adding value will disappear according to Trademark Universal, Inc.'s Consulting Division by 2013.

College graduates who are good at software will see the value of their expensive degrees evaporate in weeks as Scandinavians who have national health insurance compete on price for software jobs. It is also hard to believe, but computers with artificial intelligence can do the work of doctors, lawyers, and accountants instantly today. Software can easily replicate human analysis.

As artificial intelligence technology advances, the concept of all advanced analytical work will erode fast. And so will the wages associated with these career paths. Thus, computers will eliminate the wages of nearly all lawyers and doctors by 2015. To compete, Western society will have to come up with ways to learn and communicate faster.

Firstly, people cannot talk as fast as they can type. Secondly, the keyboard, mouse and numeric keypad are replacing pen and paper. Thirdly, the fax is also becoming meaningless. Finally, email has replaced the need for humans to write physically. Clearly, the handwritten word is meaningless today.

So why are kids being asked to write and read today, especially the poor? Third world countries are trying to teach their kids how to read and write and also to speak English. Many of these nations are losing sight of the fact that these two skills will be meaningless in ten years. Because new technologies have emerged that make rote learning unnecessary.

MP3 and MP4 files make it absolutely unnecessary to learn how to write. Voice recognition software can actually type out bits that can easily be reprocessed by a computer into essays, pictures, and also sound recordings. Thus, writing will be meaningless in the future.

Few Americans understand that people no longer need to talk to each other to facilitate trade. Rather supercomputers are doing the talking. Today the majority of trading on America's New York Stock Exchange, the Tokyo Nikkei, the London Exchange and also the German Dax is entirely transacted by computers trading with computers. Startling as this may sound, these machines can actually learn from mistakes. The only human components of these markets are the janitors who clean the machines and day traders who trade in their retail accounts.

Absent global nuclear war, it is highly unlikely that the human race will need to know how to write or read in twenty years. How can I say this? Trademark Universal, Inc. has developed a methodology that makes the written word meaningless for children using our Boolean Grid technique.

Students with severe dyslexia are quickly able to learn faster and get similar scores on standardized aptitude tests as students who do not have dyslexia. Just imagine what this technological advance will do for the developing world. In ten years, Trademark Universal's Boolean Grid technology will enable the Third World to educate all of its children and increase their aptitude without the use of books and teachers.

This development will clarify to Christian fundamentalists and Muslim zealots that we are at the ebb of western civilization. Westerners over the last three hundred years have lost sight of how many indigenous people they have enslaved, oppressed, incarcerated and killed to maintain their high levels of national income, as well as to maintain property values. By depleting these societies of their alpha males over three centuries, we in the West hoped to annihilate them. Luckily, for the sake of the planet that has been entrusted to us, we have not succeeded⁴.

Our global fascination with WASP supremacy has hindered us from realizing that Asia and the Middle East are fast rising. Their desire for nuclear technology is resolute. I believe that Iran already has several nuclear devices. How do I know this? Cancer, especially leukemia, has been spreading like wildfire in the Middle East, and especially Iran. Leukemia is a direct result of gamma radiation and strontium deterioration in the atmosphere.

But Iran lacks the sophisticated technology to test the bomb without carrying out a direct underground nuclear explosion. It is not pursuing this as the nation has become suddenly aware of the true national cost (rampant pernicious cancers and severe mental retardation) of holding these weapons that is widely hidden by our national security apparatus.

When pushed, Iran will explode a nuclear device in the subterranean levels of its deserts. A modified Scud can easily hit Saudi Arabia, our principal ally in the Middle East, within ten minutes from Iran. This topographical fact will be the absolute harbinger of the end of WASP supremacy.

WASP supremacy is perpetuated through two economic streams, capitalism and communism. Capitalism cannot exist in a world where the price of oil is above $55 per barrel. Similarly, the other form of white imperialism, communism, could not thrive in a world where the price of oil was less than $14 per barrel. Thus, the Arabs are doing the world a favor. By sustaining the high price of oil, our planet will again embrace fusion.

But fusion is not the last frontier. The last great mystery in science is how gravity is generated. Solving this will enable us to fully control nuclear fusion. As the optical internet spreads to disconnected parts of the world, adjustments to Einstein's equation will ultimately permit us to solve how fusion energy can be sustained. This means that we are at the dawn of the nuclear age as well.

Probably the greatest fear that has been generated by the oppressors of the day is global nuclear war. This is meaningless. Why? Because in the next few years, the most lethal weapon ever developed, the RNA Vector Bomb, will be unleashed by the US Army on its own people to firmly establish the American caste system.

Affirmative Incarceration Eliminates Lower Castes

There is something in America we never talk about. And that is the subject of race. If this subject is ever brought up at all, that person who even talks with even the slightest bit of maturity on the subject is quickly labeled a "nigger lover". This type of remark is a form of thought control and it mirrors the techniques used by the Nazis in Germany to make people hate Slavs. This technique is also used by the secret police in many totalitarian aristocracies, such as Saudi Arabia, Japan, Italy, Taiwan and Great Britain.

The hatred that is spewed by those who prefer the status quo when anyone talks about injustice to African Americans always reveals to me that we are no different than fascists from an earlier time. Millions of years of human evolution and beliefs in all types of supreme deities have not permitted us to deal with the concept of race in the United States. The word alone causes friction, as all Americans are unwilling to discuss the fact that many of us in this country, regardless of party affiliation, cannot get satisfactory employment, nourishment, housing or healthcare.

Nowhere are the hallmarks of WASP supremacy so easily viewable than with the continued incarceration of millions of African Americans annually, which I refer to as affirmative incarceration throughout this book. There is always an unimpeded rush to punishment and imprisonment. First, the policy is emplaced to make sure that African Americans cannot vote in electoral districts where their votes matter. Moreover, those who have pending criminal proceedings against them cannot compete in the labor markets and therefore cannot be counted in unemployment statistics. Federal statisticians can also prognosticate that economic conditions are stable, as prisoners and parolees are not counted as employable. This is how the Federal Reserve and its consigliere banks have been able to obfuscate Asian deflation. By making sure that high unemployment is reasoned away it looks like we are having rising wealth with little or no inflation. The reality is that we have phantom wealth in America and also significant high unemployment.

Contrary to what officialdom says, private employment investigators and personnel agencies can see if you were ever arrested for a crime as they have civilian moles in police departments that routinely gain access to records that are sealed by judges. By regularly arresting African Americans, even for the pettiest offenses, police departments can assure the US military a steady stream of "volunteers" for combat.

Moreover, large multinational corporations like General Electric, Inc. and International Business Machines, Inc. are assured that routine criminal background checks on African Americans will at least turn up an unpaid misdemeanor summons. This way a corporation can hide under the legal concept of plausible deniability and have a valid reason to reject an African American that can stand the scrutiny of judicial review. External corporate counsel will also advise the employer's human resource executives and internal lawyers of the tort risks of employing an African American felon.

In any American city, white employees outnumber black employees. The same applies for registered voters. But unlike white voters, black voters are overwhelmingly Democratic in their political leanings. The reasons for this party affiliation are clearly evident throughout this book. Thus, Republicans have a political need to reduce African American voters. Moreover, to hide the effects of deflation on the incomes of the white population, there is an economic necessity to reduce African American eligibility for work. Removing so many workers from the employment marketplace and reducing labor market competition, to your surprise, maintains the high wages of white professionals⁵. But when did this start? Was there a turning point?

Turning points are rare to see in the history of a society, as historians rarely understand the dynamic interchange of technology, external forces and nascent economic forces that play off each other. The Great War and World War II were clear turning points for America. The first war gave the vast amounts of poor whites their first taste of public education and financial success. It enabled them to move out of overcrowded slums and into cleaner housing. The second war, World War II, enabled young men to skip high school all together and enter prestigious colleges without taking any standardized exams. Not only was their tuition paid for by the US military, but many were also provided jobs that easily enabled them to obtain low cost mortgages and consumer credit for the first time. This was a repeat of the Homestead Act's benefits, but for a new generation.

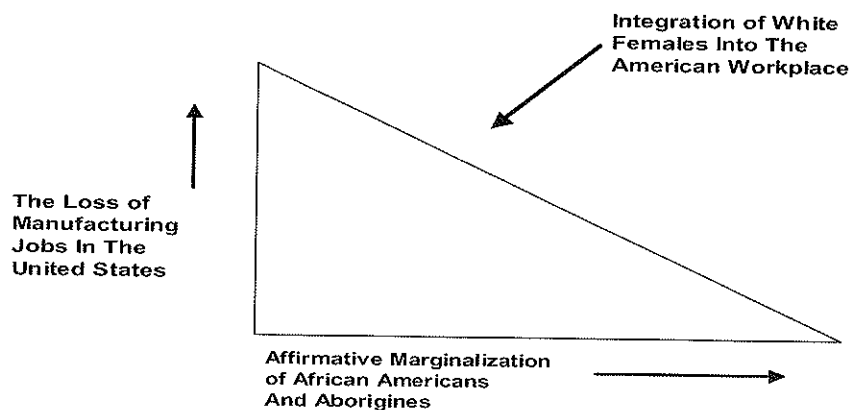

World War I and World War II were transition points for the African American community as well. During this period, community members were decimated by waves of heroin exported to America by European aristocrats. They were also denied basic health care and education, as well as routinely incarcerated for the most trivial misdemeanors. African American society survived during these decades because family formation, Christian rituals and the role of the father remained sacrosanct within the community.

However, this society could not survive the Viet Nam War era. The reintegration of millions of Europeans and Asians into the global economy in the 1960's required the removal of hundreds of thousands of workers from the labor force to hide the economic effects of this manufacturing deflation on our economy. Our national security apparatus encouraged more and more women to seek work to maintain the illusion that household incomes were rising. Soon houses and cars grew larger. To perpetuate the illusion of growing prosperity, millions were encouraged to move into cooperative complexes and segregated suburbs that legally excluded minorities.

US Hegemony Required The Integration Of Japan, Taiwan And Germany Into The Global Economy

The social costs of this integration fell on African Americans and Aborigines

The real cost of this manufacturing deflation that ensued in America fell on African Americans and America's large cities. Advertising firms, media, banks, rating agencies and law firms all assisted the national security apparatus in this great charade of building concentration camps all over the United States. The subsequent social emasculation of African American fathers that occurred during these years was a clear turning point.

African Americans were jailed for drinking, skipping school, loitering, not paying parking fines, littering, and jay walking. To show they were tough on crimes that cost society $5 at most, judges were quick to point out how assiduously they stuck to sentencing guidelines during this era to teach these "darkies" a lesson. It was during this era that a young attorney named William Rehnquist routinely illegally harassed black voters in the South to prevent them from legally voting. The judges that mentored Rehnquist also routinely sentenced African American felons to concentration camps that cost thousands of dollars per felon to operate. The Viet Nam War started the affirmative incarceration and annihilation of African American citizens from American society.

To prevent the effective analysis of arrest records, police departments routinely ignore checking the race columns of summonses. As a victim of many violent crimes, I have come to realize what many African Americans have long ago surmised. The law simply does not exist for the poor in America and there is a lack of punishment when it comes to crimes involving minorities. Essentially police departments throughout the United States expect the poor to police themselves through the laws of evolution.

Policemen are quick to point out that they are responding to voter mandates and demands from bankers, politicians, landlords, and employers. They are all just following orders just like the Waffen SS of a previous era. And they are absolutely right!

Thousands of manufacturing jobs have been forced to leave American cities due to leveraged buyouts and financial schemes. Large corporations and their stooge politicians were clearly afraid of an expansion of welfare benefits. What better way to mitigate the expansion of benefits to the poor than to incarcerate those who needed assistance. Clearly, affirmative incarceration tactics devastated the social fabric of cities.

Affirmative incarceration was necessary as politicians needed to reduce the employability of blacks and create the artifice of rising wages and full employment for the majority. As the chart on the previous page shows, the integration of our European and Asian clients, Japan, Taiwan and West Germany, into the global economy required the removal of African Americans from the labor force. This way white voters could not tell that manufacturing deflation had hit them.

Wealthy women soon became empowered and went to work in offices as well during this period. By liberating and empowering wealthy women, the national security apparatus could easily rally support for the military's vast expenditures during the Cold War. Our military, by employing so many wealthy women, co-opted a principal proponent for social change in our country, liberal upper-class females.

Moreover, Japanese and German imports eroded the supply of low-end manufacturing jobs available to high school graduates. Chromium plants shuttered. Steel plants and coal mines closed. Jobs for poorly skilled high school graduates were no longer plentiful as affirmative action policies were expanded rapidly to include white females. Most companies started hiring white females and shunned black males entirely, actively feminizing industry.

Moreover, the loss of domestic manufacturing jobs drove many African Americans to voluntarily enlist with the US Army thinking they would get GI Bill benefits when they returned. Those who did not enlist were eventually drafted after LBJ expanded the war effort and excluded those kids who could afford to go to college⁶. This patriotism was not rewarded. Unfortunately, our national security apparatus continued to regard African Americans as a continued security threat because of their unwillingness to accept their second-class status and their continued desire to exercise the franchise guaranteed by the US Constitution.

By sending the poor alpha males of the African American community to the killing fields of Tet, Laos, and Saigon, America's military and social planners were finally able to permanently damage African American society. Superiors routinely subjected African Americans, in 'Nam, to harsh treatment. In infantry they were routinely required to "run point", which is the head of the battalion, on counter insurgency and reconnaissance work. These are the first people to be shot⁷. Many were quickly maimed or eliminated by snipers and landmines.

African Americans who survived Viet Nam came back to find limited employment opportunity because of the ⁶ Most of our Fortune 500 executives, law firm partners, and professors are men who did not have to serve in the US military during the Viet Nam War. These men are also the most ardent supporters for the war in Iraq. Wealthy African Americans (there were many) were also able to dodge the draft in the same manner as William Jefferson Clinton and George Bush, Jr.

movement of manufacturing jobs to Japan, Taiwan and West Germany. No GI bill existed for them so they could not go to college. Those who utilized narcotics on the battlefield to numb the pain of combat came back addicted to illegal substances. The Veterans Administration, overburdened and understaffed, gave the mentally ill Bibles and advised many to seek Jesus to mollify the psychological damage and physical pain of battles long ended. Soon these veterans faced mental illness, poverty, and homelessness.

This was not payback as many legal scholars perpetuate. On the contrary, this was just a continuation of policies long established in America to marginalize African Americans. Companies were being asked to hire females by the national security apparatus, as many women were able to go to the best universities and high schools for the first time. They possessed diplomas from state universities, community colleges, correspondence schools and even top high schools that used to be exclusively male.

The Department of Education, a member of the propaganda arm of the national security apparatus, gave female applicants significant qualifications that their African American male counterparts simply could not obtain as they were not allowed into the same schools. Affirmative action for many minorities meant a free trip to a concentration camp (called jail to anyone who has never stayed in one) or Viet Nam.

Decimated by the psychological demons that came from the brutality of war, and unable to reenter the workforce due to the lack of academic credentials, many wandered aimlessly throughout the United States and soon ran into the affirmative incarceration policies set up by rural hamlets. Affirmative incarceration was initially set up to thwart drug dealers, but soon its primary purpose was to remove African American votes from districts where their votes could support the Democratic Party or candidates who wanted to expand social benefits for the poor.

Faced with the decimation of manufacturing in rural towns and cities, authorities started policies like the Rockefeller Drug Laws to transfer wealth from wealthy metropolitan areas to predominantly under-skilled caucasian hamlets. The subsequent systematic incarceration of African Americans mirrored the inhumane policies of the English and French kings of the 17th and 18th centuries.

Considering how many African Americans are incarcerated, the reader would think that our concentration camps would be located in predominately African American communities. No way! We spend over $50 billion annually on incarcerating the poor. A concentration camp creates jobs, leisure activities, and expands housing values for small town populations that no longer have any manufacturing plants. All of this by not raising any taxes on the inhabitants of that county. All a rural hamlet needs to keep its concentration camps humming is a steady supply of African American felons to butcher within its walls.

Furthermore, the prisoners are from outside of the county. This is relevant because criminologists and sociologists have found that excessive incarceration will result in the development of a social underclass that will undermine the cohesiveness of a society⁸. By importing manacled and shackled African Americans by ship, plane, and boxcars into rural hamlets, Republicans could avoid the risk of releasing them back into local society. When these native born US citizens were emancipated, they would rarely want to live adjacent to the prison that they were incarcerated in.

Affirmative incarceration, or what is referred to as the Rockefeller Drug Laws in New York, was designed to punish poor Americans and reflected the inchoate rise of investment banks as political powers. Many of the poor who were unable to afford the attorneys that could navigate the legal system faced draconian prison lengths in rural maximum-security prisons. Once convicted, prosecutors were asked by judges to cut deals with felons if they could name or entrap cohorts. This policy was the final nail in the coffin for the African American community.

How so? One way an African American male could get a lower prison sentence was to cajole a cohort to commit a similar crime⁹. In New York, an African American facing twenty to thirty years in jail would get a reduced sentence of possibly five years if they got a friend to carry drugs to a rural hamlet. This created a domino effect in the cities of America.

Affirmative Incarceration Has Led To Millions Of Disenfranchised Citizens

Deflation has been addressed through the feminization of university admissions and American professional occupations, the denigging/reengineering of American corporations through leveraged buyouts, and the affirmative incarceration of African Americans. Surprisingly, few Americans are aware of the millions of their citizens who are being put in jail so they cannot vote for candidates who will alleviate manufacturing job loss.

Suspects were forced to literally get the drugs and give it to their friends and drive them to jurisdictions where this entrapment practice was tolerated. This not only expanded the prison population dramatically, but it also significantly increased employment in many parts of upstate New York, southern New Jersey and rural Connecticut¹⁰.

Not only was it a clear violation of human decency, but its over enforcement on African Americans speaks clearly of targeted annihilation of one of God's species. America's prisons are concentration camps for the poor. The reader may recall Hitler's death camps ultimately lead to his downfall, as the camps required too many soldiers and too much fuel to operate.

Most drug dealers would implicate their strung out girl friends or relatives. The few white suspects were actively encouraged by zealous prosecutors looking to make a name for themselves to get their black friends to deal. Many suspects had children. So upon getting convicted, children were sent to foster homes. What was left of the nuclear family in the African American community after the Viet Nam War was effectively destabilized. Republicans, by actively destroying the nuclear family in the African American community, are solely responsible for creating a cycle of violence that has plagued our cities since 1968.

Federal bureaucrats have completely abandoned this segment of society by under-funding the government agencies that are necessary for a society to be cohesive, similar to the practice Moslems carried out on the untouchables of India for centuries.

Prior to Brown vs. Board of Education, public schools were adequately funded. Minority schools played an integral role in the community as African American teachers and principals were role models in the community. Today this is not valid, as our unconstitutional property tax based education regimes clearly do not want African American teachers or guidance counselors assisting African American students in public schools.

Many poor parents today do not have the proper upbringing to bring up their own children, as the public education they received was not even rudimentary. Moreover, in the parent's most formative years, their fathers were most likely removed and put into concentration camps due to affirmative incarceration policies or were unemployed because of a lingering summons received due to military-sponsored feminization or investment bank-sponsored denigrating policies.

Salacious images of lewd sexuality are tolerated by a largely poor group of parents. Unable to decipher what is age appropriate, many speak in a vernacular that is emblematic of cultural neglect. This same crude language is evident among the untouchables of India and the aborigines of China, Tibet, Pakistan and Bangladesh. It impedes the communication of basic health concepts and the prevention of sexually transmitted diseases such as herpes and genital warts. Furthermore, affirmative incarceration has more to do with the rampant HIV and drug addiction that is prevalent among the poor than we are led to believe.

Most Americans are not aware of these laws, as politicians do not address the needs of the impoverished constituency that these laws affect. By removing African American men from voting booths, neighborhoods and employment rolls, Republicans have effectively silenced the debate. Republican legislators continue to utilize affirmative incarceration to systematically remove poor citizens' ability to exercise their franchise in states where manufacturing is permanently in decline.

Republicans have been assisted by the various agencies that are part of the US Department of Justice, free trade advocates, as well as by state supreme courts. Republicans have also received tacit support at the local level from local banks, the National Rifle Association, Young Republicans, the American Medical Association, nearly all police unions and police benevolent associations, and numerous construction companies¹¹.

American cities quickly lost the most important members of their communities, young fathers, to rural concentration camps. Judges, legislators, and bankers share direct responsibility for this genocide. Even though it is not the role of the citizen to subsidize human bondage, it is the US taxpayer who today perpetuates it through affirmative incarceration policies.

I have no idea why a crime involving less than $100 of narcotics should be punished with over $1,000,000 spent by a state for incarceration. Any sane businessman would want to understand where the money was coming from to pay for this, especially when we are running huge federal deficits. Clearly, it is a direct transfer from the wealthy parts of a state to the poor rural parts of the state. Only European aristocrats and Republican fascists could dream up such ludicrous economic policy.

Economics classes rarely discuss race when it comes to GDP accounting and macroeconomic policies as it mucks up the delusion of supply and demand. Race in the economics discussion is like friction in the theoretical physics discussion, assumed away to prove that the dominant theories are only true.

For example, our states routinely indicate that they do not have enough money to pay for public schools, universal daycare, and universal healthcare. However, states keep increasing the allotments to prisons. The end result of the expansion of affirmative incarceration is that we are creating an underclass that will undermine our society and our nation. It has gotten to the point that there will be national security implications in the near future, as we have so many African Americans in prison¹².

¹¹ Republican legislators also draw comfort that they can liquidate any threats by using sophisticated drugs that induce heart attacks, stroke, and death. These drugs are untraceable and are classified. It is this author's opinion that the former Chairman of the House Banking Committee was assassinated using these methods. Chairman Gonzalez was a staunch critic of rural concentration camps.

Affirmative incarceration is the reason that the House of Representatives is under Republican control. Clearly, the policy is a direct result of a decline in manufacturing jobs and the need to create jobs in rural parts of states to maintain WASP supremacy. Ultimately, it led to the psychological and physical isolation of millions of human beings over the last two decades from the democratic process. Such isolation breeds opportunity for those who want to circumvent America's national security.

More importantly, former convicts can be utilized by drug cartels and foreign provocateurs (especially the spy agencies of Iran, China and Russia) to undermine the national security of the United States¹³. If our national security establishment is not focused on this issue, they need to be quick! The American military must provide African American servicemen an answer as to why this genocidal policy remains in place. Clearly, our enemies and their operatives can obtain this genocidal policy's statistics from the internet.

Many Americans routinely protest that they had nothing to do with slavery and thus, do not have to be subject to affirmative action policies. To some extent, ¹² Was the French Revolution really about getting rid of the king? Was the Protestant Reformation really about religion? Why were so many Protestants imprisoned by Catholic kings? Was there a need to create jobs for Catholics?

¹³ Could this be behind the growth of so many teenage gangs?

it is a logical argument. But all Americans share responsibility for affirmative incarceration as it was enacted in the late 1960's and is still carried out today. We as a society will suffer in Hell for what we have done to the poor. We do not have the right to say we are a democracy, as we are not. The continued genocidal policies of our government makes us no better than the most brutal Soviet and Nazi regimes.

More importantly, the tax bases of many states are eroding. As China supplants America in manufacturing, our concentration camp system will have to be broken down, as redistributing taxes cannot occur within a state if that state mirrors its moral bankruptcy with fiscal insolvency.

Just as Europe's aristocracy moved to our shores after World War II to escape deflationary forces on their wealth, our gentry will move elsewhere, leaving the meek to inherit the stresses of a vastly poorer land. A similar situation occurred in Great Britain, France and Spain when they had to deal with Japan and Germany emerging as industrial powers. That is the reason why there are so many Europeans in the United States today; they are taking advantage of the fact that American employers categorically refuse to hire qualified African American and Asian American men for white-collar occupations.

Europeans have also modified their prison systems to deal with the mass emigration of middle class citizens to America. Today, these prisons exist to deal with hardened criminals, especially those who cannot be rehabilitated. The European Union has also largely legalized the private use of narcotics and rarely arrests someone for smoking marijuana. Switzerland's entire GDP, like Columbia's, is reliant on the laundering of the deposits of those who administer the distribution systems of the narco-traffickers.

Rampant drug use in Europe has gotten to the point where Europeans are desperate to import Africans and Muslims, so that they can create a caste of social pariahs¹⁴. This way they can obfuscate their role in perpetuating illegal narcotics trade worldwide to an electorate that can easily be convinced that it is Africans and Muslims who are behind Europe's social problems. And if anyone protests, just label him a "nigger-lover" and he or she will quickly draw back into the fold. After all, the tactic worked perfectly for the Nazis when they murdered the poor.

Unbeknownst to most, the Swiss are only copying current French and English models to deal with rising Asian manufacturing deflation. The West, as their representative democracies have devolved into oligarchies, is desperate to import brown Arabs, black Africans and Hindus to pay the large payroll taxes that are needed to fund their pension systems. The intention of these governments is for the immigrants to suddenly die¹⁵ prior to them receiving any welfare benefits. Surprisingly, this is the same role for minorities to fulfill in America. Our country has taught the world that if you have someone black or brown in your country, you can blame him for nearly all the social problems caused by Asian manufacturing deflation.

It is amazing how in England, France, and Germany, Africans have supplanted Communists and Nazis as the most hated peoples. Unable to compete with the Far East, and unable to accept their serf status as an American protectorate, Europeans have resorted to the time tested and true ability to marginalize those with darker skin to protect themselves from the need to expand benefits for the poor and to reduce the wealth of their oligarchs. This is the linchpin for a caste system to take hold, as caste is entirely based on color.

¹⁴ This is called "niggering-up". This is needed to facilitate denigging by banks.

¹⁵ The technology exists. I am not kidding you. The US military has an aerosol that can induce a heart attack and that is completely undetectable by modern forensics. No need for bullets. Amino acid and gelatin based nanotechnology works! Looks like water after thirty minutes in the body.

The secret that Field Marshall Goebbels taught the world is that you have to make the poor absolutely look evil to kill it off readily. Through negative reinforcement (television, movies, and newspaper pictures) make it look as if they can do the most abominable things¹⁶. Furthermore, geographically isolate these individuals and make it seem that they live in desperate neighborhoods out of choice.

Rather than lower taxes, make it impossible for these poor people to make ends meet. In addition, set local laws and guidelines to make them pay high taxes, high rents and high food costs. Make sure there are plenty of established business interests (media companies, weapons manufacturers, domestic banks, and large drug companies) and members of the aristocracy (children of Senators, children of former Presidents, former executives) who will financially benefit from this genocide. They will be your protectors when you are attacked!

Most of all, you have to prevent the poor from saving a single penny. Keep their men unemployed and give their women jobs. Keep their children as close to illiteracy and innumeracy as possible. Ultimately, those who are being systematically murdered by the state must have no financial or intellectual resources for legal address, domestically or internationally. The above is the proven method that Germany used against millions of its poor Slavs and what our gentry have reclaimed to murder the poor.

The desperation that the rural poor present to American society is real. They have no food, they have no schools, and they have no government. They are forced to pay rent for housing that they cannot afford. It seems that everyone is against them. Their fear turns to anger. And anger leads to violence. This will make people even afraid to be near such individuals, let alone even touch them.

The universal fear of closeness is needed to implement a caste system. Caste is the greatest form of group mind control developed. Muslim social policies have been slowly adopted and adapted by Western democracies as Islam and Christianity share a uniform hate for brown skin. Negative reinforcement ultimately enables politicians to control millions of people with only words. It is easy to incite fear and hatred¹⁷. And that is the secret of caste.

A caste system requires absolute and resolute hatred of a dark race. This must occur even if that face is the face of a person's mother, father, son, daughter, husband, or wife. That is the only way the Muslims could rule India's docile races that were a hundred times their size and at least ten shades darker than they were. This trend is enduring worldwide and will be established in the United States by 2010, as it already exists in Europe and the Middle East.

It all depends on how long we can finance our current fascist police state infrastructure in the world of $55 per barrel of oil. Once the corrupt system of WASP supremacy fails, caste will return to America as it already has in Europe. Caste will dominate the Western hemisphere again as it did during the time of the Moors.

But 2010 is far away. Military planners know that to implement a caste system, feminization of industry must occur to remove minority castes from the professions. This process is largely complete in America. Through the mass distribution of opiates (Paxil, Prozac, and Lexipro) to women, the military will be able to easily control them through strategic media propaganda.

The genocide of African American children has gone on successfully, according to Pentagon planners, for three decades. Unlike previous genocides, America's military was keen to make sure its aristocracy's women shared in the bonanza of McMansions and untaxed stock options that are the hallmarks of affirmative incarceration. Giving wealthy women professional careers removed them as critics and emplaced them as banner bearers of affirmative incarceration.

Feminization of our educational, industrial, and military institutions is absolutely necessary to maintain a caste system once it has been established. American women are senators, congresswomen, corporate executives, generals, physicians, scientists, surgeons and administrators.

Millions of women have been emplaced in positions with real authority. The SAT®, a relic of the Cold War, was made easier in the last ten years to facilitate this process. Military planners are fully aware that women, unlike men, will only communicate to those of the same status and are prone to respect people of lighter hues. Ultimately, these women will raise a generation of children that will be inculcated with caste prejudices after birth.

Many would argue that affirmative incarceration was needed to implement feminization and to install a caste system in America. How else will America survive the economic darkness that will ensue with the rise of Hindu supremacy? Is it possible that we will come to our senses and end affirmative incarceration because it is just and the Christian thing to do? Grow up! The American experiment has ended.

So successful have our aristocracy and the national security apparatus (consisting of our banks, multinationals, and military) been in emasculating African American society, they are moving onto eliminating the white middle class with alacrity. Few of us who foolhardily support the national security apparatus understand that caste systems do not possess a middle class, only rich and poor.

Standardized Testing Is Utilized To Establish Castes

The most amazing thing happened once to a student that I prepped from Stuyvesant High School. He was an A student who was taking a differential calculus class at a local college. What was also unique about him was his lack of income. He was also very aggressive and had a very high aptitude.

In Trademark Universal's IVY Verbal Review prep course, there was not a single math problem he could not solve. We then utilized the college textbooks and he could answer that set of questions as well. Then he went to take the SAT® and totally bombed the math section. He took it again and got a lower score. Prior to taking the exam, he took the SAT II® math exam and got an 800 on it. So how could he possibly have gotten a lower score on an exam that was easier? In his frustration he called the testing service that administers the exam and they advised him that they could not provide him an answer sheet as they had misplaced his exam.

This is not a unique situation. It happens hundreds of times in every state in our Union. What is unique about it is that it almost always happens to students who are poor. Standardized testing services do not test for aptitude. Rather their purpose is to exclude as many poor students as possible from contention to prestigious universities. What is unique about this process in the United States is that there is a double standard when it comes to females. Poor girls are encouraged to apply to higher education, but poor boys are not.

Many wealthy students, who apply for college in the United States, if they have financial means, do not have to take the requisite exams that the poor have to take. Top universities routinely waive standardized test requirements for rich applicants (I have proof of this). The same applies to wealthy Europeans. Wealthy foreigners are excluded from taking the ACT® and the SAT®. Most of these applicants would do poorly on the exam, as they are not aware of the cultural idioms on the exam.

This student's situation with the SAT® made me question what is standardized testing in the United States. I did not think I would uncover anything irregular as I prep many kids from many diverse backgrounds. But unlike most reporters and teachers, I have an amazing background. I not only know how universities fund themselves, but also how they distribute financial aid and scholarships. So I came to the realm of standardized testing with a different eye than most people. One more capable of associating effects with causes, and not one biased toward the view of the university as a temple.

What I have learned over the years is that there is systematic bias in the system. No standardized test in America measures aptitude. However, most exams do measure accurately how well a student comprehends certain upper class idioms in American English that are not taught in 100% of our nation's public schools.

Standardized exams have benefited America in the 1990's by sharply reducing teenage crime. The boom years of the internet-con era led to the mistaken belief by many students that they will get rich overnight. By bamboozling students to take harder and harder coursework, colleges and schools districts have guaranteed that few American teenagers have any freedom to seriously question the social structure they are in. Overwhelmingly, many students are inundated with so much schoolwork that the only option they have is to either drop out or burn out.

Standardized testing is a hallmark of American public education. It is a systematic and pervasive terror that children face in America. For most of the 20th century, standardized testing was utilized to segregate the poor from the rich. Absent the massive computer infrastructure that is present today, most exams were scored by hand. Today, computers make it easy to score exams and also to isolate the exams of undesirables and make them score poorly.

There is no outside auditor for any standardized testing service that can validate if shenanigans are going on. Most school districts across the board in the United States under fund schools where there are excessive minorities. New York City is the biggest example of this. Furthermore, limited opportunities for minority males to take advanced coursework exist at most public and private schools.

Under the guise of privacy, schools routinely harm children by routinely testing them for topics that are not taught in class. In America, the local bureaucracy controls who becomes what by controlling how they perform on standardized examinations. The standardized testing system reflects the inequalities fostered by our present day national security apparatus; one that has lost its raison d'être after the fall of the Soviet Union.

Both federal and local standardized testing are funded by school districts to facilitate the tracking of minorities into lower performing schools and vocational occupations. It is also utilized to prevent minorities from pursuing higher education. The end goal, redirection to prisons or the military, is guaranteed by the affirmative incarceration system set up by the National Security Act.

Today, by providing easier exams in wealthier neighborhoods, the system perpetuates the myth that rich students are smarter and that suburban school districts offer comparable or better public schooling than better-funded urban districts. Alarming, standardized examinations in the United States are manipulated today to maintain the increase in property values in predominantly WASP neighborhoods.

This is the reason that so many American students perform poorly on international exams. Foreign exams are not biased based on which zip code you live in or the test taker's race. Moreover, wealthy students in suburban school districts are routinely given illegal copies of previous exams prior to their administration. This even occurs on the SAT®, SAT II® and state exams. For WASP supremacy in schooling to be maintained, back channels of exclusive tutors are utilized to distribute examinations. Even if it means that African Americans are tested unfairly.

During the Cold War, the Russians did not understand American society because they did not have the pervasive appreciation of written text that Americans have. In addition, they could not tell from reading a person's typed text what class or level of education they had. Communist doctrine in Russia stipulated universal education, literacy, and writing. Unfortunately, the Russians were too successful at it. After Stalin's purges, nearly all Russians thought, studied, and wrote the same way. Thus, Communist spies could not understand the intricate idiomatic language structure that WASP supremacy had taken in America.

Moreover, Soviet Communists did not understand their own society's cultural weakness. Russian culture is extremely oral in the passing on of its traditions. Communists in Russia generally show affection when they greet each other, rubbing each other's backs, even if they are from different social strata. And many times men and women will pat each other's cheeks as a sign of equality, and also fraternity. Wealthy WASPs rarely exhibit this behavior. It is considered a sign of poor breeding, as they view emotions as a sign of impurity. Only African Americans are permitted to express these mannerisms in America.

Anglo-Saxon culture, especially the upper-class culture of America's elite Protestant groupings is richly based on written text. Standardized exams are filled with subtle aspects of language, which are not at all taught in public schools. They are taught, however, in elite day and boarding schools. In fact the easiest way to do well on standardized exams is to review the curriculum of expensive day schools. Across the board, standardized exams reflect the English of day schools costing $30,000 and up per annum in tuition.

In addition, the reading passages have double entendres that few students understand as they do not have the requisite wealth that would enable them to speak in such a manner. The diners of a restaurant will be referred to as clientele, as opposed to customers. Business and legal idioms are interjected so that children from those castes would only get those questions right.

How many students know that the auditors of a firm work for the treasurer of the firm? Few know what an auditor is. And yet this idiom is tested on a standardized exam! And it is on purpose. Standardized testing in America does not perpetuate democracy. This is a farce. Standardized tests ultimately permit those who control America to cede that control to their progeny. These tests are the first step in what I contend as an affirmative incarceration policy that was necessary to create a caste structure for America. Caste is the only way WASP supremacy can survive in a world that will soon be dominated by Hindus.

Many universities now require multiple essays for admission. This way the university can garner the psychological disposition of the student applying. To facilitate selection of the wealthy over the poor, most top universities have early decision programs. Top schools routinely state that they are need blind, but they often accept more than 50% of their freshman class from the early decision application pool¹⁸.

Moreover, to further guarantee acceptance of wealthy students, schools often schedule interviews over the summer. I have routinely seen this procedure done for WASP males. To the critic who sees this and states that is their prerogative, I would have to say I agree. But as a citizen, I do not have to subsidize institutional racism. Nor do I have to provide tax exemptions to racist institutions or mortgages secured by the full faith and credit of the State of New York to racist institutions.

Furthermore, in school districts such as New York City where there are talented poor students, school districts increase the workload by nearly 100% in days prior to standardized exams or before critical application deadlines. In America, schools that have a large population of talented minority males will have excess workloads the two weeks prior to the November 1 deadline for early decision as well as the five days before the October PSAT®/SAT®.

Moreover, to increase a schools ranking in sexist and clearly racially biased surveys that do not look at what the schools produce and take in at the same time¹⁹, top schools set up dual degree programs. The problem is that few people can get in. Over three thousand Asian applicants applied to New York University's dual degree BS/MD programs when all they took were ten in each program. When Trademark Universal, Inc.'s IVY Verbal Review service advised Asian students that dual degree programs are often highly selective and discriminatory, they shrug us off because not a single top school publishes the ethnicity of applicants or acceptances to these programs.

The university ranking game is based on the number of rejections of A students, even though A averages are pedestrian in America. In addition, the more A students that a college rejects, the more likely its ranking will go up. Unfortunately, schools do not publish for public consumption who they accept and who they reject. And that is because the application process is a profit center for most schools.

Schools do not publish whom they accept with fee waivers, but almost always they are Asians as colleges routinely reject African American applicants. The dirty little secret in higher education is that the more African Americans that are there on campus, the less likely it is perceived as an outstanding institution.

¹⁹ Every white male who succeeds at a university would have succeeded regardless of where they attended. Does the son of a millionaire really have to attend Yale to become a millionaire? I do not think so. This is a fact and not an anomaly.

Baruch College of the City University of New York and Vassar College exemplify this beautifully. Baruch College is clearly one of the best schools in the United States. Nearly all of the professors have PhD's and it teaches business in the heart of New York City. And yet the school is consistently ranked low. Why? Because it has a large proportion of minority students²⁰. Critics would say that they are poor and do not have the credentials of prior classes, and yet nearly all of the prominent alumni who attended this public university in the 1950's and 1960's were also poor²¹.

Vassar College is also a center for scholarship. Now that it is nearly coeducational, it is ludicrous to call it a woman's college. And yet that perception remains. Vassar should be ranked in the top twenty schools in the United States as I think students really do learn a lot at this school.

Few students are taught psychology at an early age so they are unable to understand how a person's true nature can be displayed in writing. This way school authorities can control who actually succeeds. By creating a system of elaborate controls and standardized exams, our society can readily marginalize the growing minority of its citizenry that are not white. Moreover, it is easier to test that which is not taught as it provides fodder to the racists that run standardized testing that certain races, a legacy of Cyril Darlington, do not have the necessary biology to facilitate aptitude and comprehension.

But the system of psychometric testing, property tax funded school districts, and also positive discrimination towards the rich will come full circle in the next decade. Our nation will have some serious problems that no race based system of education can continue to perpetuate.

Our national security apparatus will finally fall apart under the weight of its own fuel bill. Racism has real dollar costs. To hide the costs of fuel subsidies to the national security apparatus, it was necessary to guarantee that aboriginal and Negro males not succeed.

This same system will ultimately bankrupt several states. How? The government has perpetuated a system of education that will not continue to produce results. Colleges have essentially become trade schools. Furthermore, universities have perpetuated the myth that higher education will lead to higher salaries for non-WASPs. Prior to the internet fraud, it was impossible to go to college and make significant moneys afterwards. I do not know why colleges continue to perpetuate this lie.

Middle class students are constantly taught that admissions are need blind. Where? I want a school to show me all the kids they rejected whose parents could afford to send them to top tutors, prep schools, and summer programs. They are rarely rejected; as all colleges need students to pay the annual rent on the vast system of state financed mortgaged dormitories.

Colleges now put out propaganda that everyone who goes to college will become millionaires. Nearly all women will not. And nearly all men will not. Our economy is tinkering on top of total collapse under the war in Iraq and the future war we will have with Iran. Furthermore, an industrialized China and India will completely wipe out manufacturing in our country.

Republican politicians are unanimous in what needs to be done: build more prisons, incarcerate Negroes, and murder the poor. That was the easy way out when we were the only developed country in the world. The ensuing depression due to the rise of Hindu supremacy in the United States will bankrupt higher education. Trademark Universal, Incorporated's Consulting Division predicts that nearly 67% of US universities and schools will go bankrupt or close by 2017.

Why? Well, firstly all schools have become heavily dependent on tuition. Secondly, without student loans, most schools would close in the United States. Thirdly, as we engage other countries in war, there will be a systematic need for young boys to join the military. Finally, the cost of oil will triple in the next ten years as nearly 500,000,000 people get integrated into the global economy.

For example, when a bank lends a student nearly $250,000 to attend a top undergraduate college and a top medical school, it expects the student to earn enough to pay back that loan. Now if oil prices keep going up, hospitals cannot afford to stay open, as they will have a revenue/liability mismatch. Meaning fewer corporations will pay them for care and fewer people will pay doctors the ridiculous fees that they are charging to keep our tort and medical malpractice bar humming. This is already the state of affairs in West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Maine. As China and India get integrated into the global economy, health care costs in this country must be reduced by nearly 90% for our domestic service industry to be globally competitive. This is impossible!

Increasingly, hospitals are extending the rotations that new doctors have to go through. Many students do not understand that retirees, even if they are wealthy, will not spend as much on leisure and health care as when they were working. Moreover, many have lost nearly a third to a half of their pensions due to the dot-bomb orchestrated by the Federal Reserve. Not only will universal care be rolled out in the next decade, but also almost all medical professions will have salaried arrangements with the states. At least according to the views of Trademark Universal, Incorporated's Consulting Division.

The federal government will abrogate its responsibility for caring for the poor. It has already done so in New Orleans. Doctors in poorer states will have significant erosion in incomes. So how will they repay their loans? It is already happening in the United States as we speak. Hospitals are closing! Doctors are losing their jobs and filing for bankruptcy!

Record deficits means that the federal government will be hamstrung to increase student loan subsidies. Record unemployment in the latter half of this decade will mean more people will want to return to school when the government will least likely have the resources to assist them. Record unemployment will provide, however, record recruits for the military and our concentration camps.

As we engage other countries in war, there will be a systematic annihilation of young boys in our society. Weaponry is much more sophisticated. Depleted uranium shells guarantee that even if your child comes back whole, his chromosomes will be rearranged for the remainder of his shortened natural life. Granted that the majority who will die in the dunes of the Sahara will be African American, Hispanic, and Asian, those who remain in the homeland will have to do the dirty work that few Americans need to go to college to do. I believe that we will be forced to reinstate the military draft at that point.

Finally, the cost of oil will triple in the next ten years. Colleges cannot maintain their huge physical plant as the fuel bill keeps rising. Moreover, many institutions have become bastions of WASP supremacy. Routinely, I hear of the massive salaries being offered to administrators. On what basis! Without student loans, not a single college could have grown in the 1990's.

College is no longer a luxury item and should be considered as a significant tax on the middle class taxpayer. If professors teach the courses, and admissions are based on the ability of students to pay, what is the purpose of the people who are working all of these administrative jobs? I noticed at many universities that there are professionals running a computer lab. Why are not students, who are all rich to begin with, asked to buy a laptop? This is more ridiculous when you consider that students have a computer in their dorm room. It makes no business sense that you would provide a computing infrastructure twice

Race based admissions, and moreover a system of standardized testing that provides positive discrimination toward wealthy applicants is patently illegal under the laws of the State of New York, as well as under the equal protection clause of the US Constitution. Colleges can perpetuate it if they can afford to on their own. Under no circumstances should our tax dollars be utilized to pay for it. The system is patently unconstitutional and immoral.

By fostering the perpetual increase in tuition, colleges can no longer keep extracting military and interest rate subsidies from federal and state governments. Moreover, many colleges do not pay their fair share of income and property taxes as they are essentially tax exempt. State and local governments will be hard pressed to increase property taxes on individuals who vote and are unemployed in the next decade. It was easy to get the majority of Americans to support standardized testing that focused on certain idioms that have no cognitive basis on how they will do in chemistry or biology, as long as it was African Americans and Hispanics who did not get jobs.

University Admissions Provide The Infrastructure For Caste

Our national security apparatus requires massive resources to maintain control of the vast WASP population. But to be effective it must divide the existing social stratification. In nearly all societies (tribal and industrial), males dominate. They dominate all senior positions and also pass leadership onto their male heirs. The easiest way to undermine the integrity of any social systems is to award boons to females of subgroups. Boons must be given within an administrative infrastructure to make it appear that these women earned their boon. Moreover, to undermine a minority race, it is absolutely imperative that male members of that race who possess superior credentials be categorically rejected. This will foster resentment towards the females of the group.

Boons to women can be granted through education, merchandise, employment, and compensation. All of them are highly effective in undermining the roles of dominant males within a subgroup. By elevating women, not only will their esteem rise, but they will also effectively through their actions mollify the aggressive tendencies in their male peers. Female success will engender resentment in men and thus they will shy away from those favored females who supplant their traditional hierarchical role.

Recall that the alpha male passes the society's dominant genetic traits to his progeny. This is nearly impossible, as alpha males typically want subservient female partners, especially if the intention of the alpha male is to create a family unit. To complicate the matter further, the alpha female then expects a more successful alpha male to be her partner in life, as she cannot eliminate her genetic desire for a provider. If the family unit is not established and if the unit cannot produce alpha males, then ultimately the dominant society's social planners have facilitated the deterioration of a minority race's unique genetic characteristics (primarily its alpha male reproduction potential).

What I have detailed can be seen in many cases in multiracial societies or in societies that are being conquered by a grouping that is based on color dominance. Aborigine women in Australia were sold metal axes, which resulted in animosity between them and their male elders who traditionally could only manufacture and own the stone axes²². This enabled the WASP minority to easily manipulate aborigines to undermine their family units and kill each other. In addition, Native American men were forced to perform husbandry roles in the American West; roles primarily fulfilled by their women²³. This led to the decimation of many tribes in North and South America. Today, the aborigine population in America is less than 10% of what it used to be in the 19th century.

Negro males are denied advanced education even in the 21st century, however Negro females are permitted access to all institutions. This, along with affirmative incarceration policies, has led to the wholesale genocide of African Americans in the United States. More importantly, ambitious WASP females have been continually denied access to higher education that will make them competitive to wealthy WASP males.

In modern day practice, many universities will promote how diverse they are. But in reality, they accept

²² McLuhan, Marshall, The Medium Is The Message

²³ Fredrickson, George, White Supremacy

certain types of females from certain types of ethnic groups. I have had the pleasure of placing all types of personalities into top colleges, but I have not yet placed a highly aggressive WASP female from the upper middle class in any top institution. Moreover, the feeder private schools for many top colleges will never accept this type of female²⁴. The most aggressive women on prep school campuses today are Korean girls and ethnic white females from the Jewish and Catholic faiths. When I visit college campuses each year, I easily notice that the aggressive girls came from all ethnic groups except the WASP grouping. If there were any ambitious WASP females, they were in the socially acceptable fields of zoology, teaching, human rights advocacy and writing.

American universities do not accept white supremacists. To say so would be patently false. On the contrary they admit only what future employers want. For decades American universities provided education. After World War II, American colleges evolved into unregulated multi-billion dollar tax-exempt mutual funds whose admissions are supervised by our banking sector, the architect of our national security apparatus. Our banks have made it evident that they only want to hire white males and females. Where room permits, they will hire minority females and Hindu slaves.

The chart below indicates the clear advance women have made in higher education. Prior to the admission of women, most top college campuses were nearly 100% WASP male. It patently shows that colleges do favor women over minority male applicants. Many older department heads are more accommodating to younger women. However, except where nepotism and ²⁴ It's nearly impossible for a wealthy family to generate an aggressive female. Aggressive females only exist in poor families.

WASP supremacy are prevalent, they are unlikely to recruit or train aggressive younger men²⁵.

The above chart shows the percentage of degrees awarded in a particular year to females. For example, in 1971, 11% of geology majors were awarded to females as compared to 44.7% in 2002. Universities routinely give girls favorable housing, financial aid as well as prized slots into competitive dual degree programs. To maintain WASP supremacy, minority men are routinely not given acceptances. If they do gain admission, they will have to pay their way.

Women have earned 46.3 % of all doctorates in 2002, compared to 13.3% in 1970. MBAs awarded to women total 41.1% in 2002, compared to 3.6% in 1970. Law school admissions are averaging 50% today. All of this is in sharp contrast to the draft dodging 1960's and 1970's where women in total represented less than 10% of all advanced education.

The preceding table is not only startling, but also absolute proof that we are going towards establishing a caste society. Why? Women are far easier to psychologically manipulate than men²⁶. They actually believe social status will come from a profession, as opposed to inherited wealth or race. Also, women overwhelmingly will argue that they earned their slots over men because their high schools and colleges will generate transcripts that are not adjusted for the rampant grade inflation that is prevalent in America²⁷.

Suburban schools routinely provided a ten percent to twenty five percent increase in grades for honors courses, a practice copied from private and parochial schools in the United States. This made it look like these schools had smarter kids than kids who attended urban public schools, such as Stuyvesant High School, which did not offer rampant grade enhancement. Thus, school transcripts in America are incomparable.

Women also will not share information with alpha males. This enables older males who have power to control a greater population than they are physically capable of. Lacking the strength to ward off younger more capable men, many enterprises have put in place social barriers that cannot be overcome by ability alone²⁸. The end purpose of these barriers is to enable those in power to control others as long as they possibly can and to retard ambition in the most capable of men.

²⁶ This is not going to be explained at all here. Please refer to any standard psychological textbook and it will be readily explained. This is also why so many women are hired to work in sweatshops and factories, even in United States.

Few people understand that in the law and the medical professions women are nearly 50% of the enrollment, even though far more capable men are readily rejected. Women are overwhelmingly admitted into schools. I have proof that women can get into law schools and business schools with 3.0 GPAs and low standardized test scores. Women can also matriculate into dental schools with several C's on their transcripts and also low DAT scores. The key issue for entering the top universities today is clearly not aptitude, but sex and skin complexion. These are all the physical hallmarks of caste.

More importantly, I have observed that multinational corporations will rarely recruit at any school that has a significant minority population. This is why you see smaller liberal arts colleges in rural parts of the United States suddenly popping up as hotbeds for professional recruitment. Many of these schools do not have ample endowments to award scholarships and loans that are necessary to attract and retain talented minority students²⁹. Thus, these institutions are the most likely to have fewer minority students.

Of course, there are exceptions. Areas in the company that are heavily minority still recruit African Americans and Hispanics. For example, corporations will go to predominantly African American schools for human resource talent. In addition, hoteliers will go out of their way to recruit customer service personnel from colleges with heavy minority enrollments. Jobs that also require sustained exposure to carcinogens predominantly go to African Americans and Hispanics.

The private sector further undermines the credibility of universities by paying huge coordinated bribes, called professional tuition for tax purposes, for top MBA degrees and educational PhDs. It is ludicrous to believe that this only occurs for business and educational degrees, as many schools now cater to the aristocracy. Universities now sell degrees to the highest bidder.

Harvard University gives so many degrees to the super rich that one has to ask why this unregulated mutual fund is accredited as a college, as opposed to a taxable investment company. The endowment is not used to significantly fund research or to assist the poor. The critical component for admissions is the ability to pay, as it sustains the growth of the Harvard Corporation's capital base. Harvard Corporation would be a $200 billion stock company if it were listed publicly. It is bigger and more profitable than General Motors! Thus, this unregulated $25 billion mutual fund is not serving the public interest, and it should be taxed.

Admission to top universities and colleges are not need blind. Private schools, universities and colleges have received exemptions from the US Constitution, as well as more liberal state constitutions. Thus, minorities cannot seek redress in our courts. Universities thus have a broad license from the national security apparatus to discriminate against the poor and nearly all minority males.

Universities will take the occasional talented poor student, but only after they have vetted the child to make sure he is not a social threat to wealthier students. Thus, the poor white male who wants to be an investment banker is routinely rejected. Why? Because he would be a threat to the fifth and eighth-generation WASP males at the institution, who also want to pursue similar lucrative careers.

The exceptions to these rules are the scores of wealthy Indians and Japanese who come to American schools to gain degrees. Many of these individuals pay millions of rupees³⁰ and yen as legal bribes to attend schools that readily discriminate against poor Americans. The argument that many of these people would go elsewhere is specious, as other industrialized countries do not enable foreigners to compete for undergraduate university slots against their own citizenry³¹.

How do I know all this? Well, Trademark Universal, Inc's IVY Verbal Review division has been preparing applications for college students for nearly a decade now from all over the East Coast and the facts of the argument can easily be borne out by the admissions rolls of all institutions. Now I mean not whom they accepted, but who actually enrolled. Most poor white male students who are accepted are rarely given the necessary financial aid awards to matriculate.

Empirically speaking, the overwhelming majority of white male students who apply for financial aid will never get the necessary aid to attend a competitive school. Surprisingly, minority females routinely get more financial aid than white males.

The outlook for most poor males is bleak. Through a complex set of star chambers that are hidden from the public, top ranked universities determine who will receive scholarships and who will not receive them. Our national security apparatus requires the undermining of minority groups, as well as absolute ³⁰ Per capita income in India is less than $1,000. Clearly, these individuals are the richest members of Indian society.

³¹ Japan, Germany, Italy, and England do not allow Indians to compete for non-research university postings.

control of the WASP majority. Moreover, in order to maintain its dominance over the citizenry, it requires that the least capable member of a group be given more access than someone who is significantly more capable. This is done mostly to breed distrust.

This is why Jason Blair was allowed to report on so many stories for the New York Times organization. Clearly, many unemployed reporters would resent his plum position at the Times. But imagine the resentment that other African Americans would have that such an incompetent man got the job. Clearly, for the national security apparatus to maintain control, it is imperative that highly incapable males receive admission to universities.

This is also why television news shows, a vital component of the national security apparatus, routinely show undereducated African American children acting violently in over crowded dirty public schools. There is a constant need to remind predisposed women, through the power of suggestion, that all minorities, regardless of age and circumstance, are dangerous.

Not only is feminization necessary to undermine the social position of the poor alpha male in his own community, but it will also lead to an inferiority complex that is passed on when the poor alpha male decides to have children. Few of us understand that chromosomes mutate as we age. The more confident a man is when he breeds, the more confident his offspring will be.

Our national security apparatus is fully aware of the research done by Nazi Germany's eugenicists. Ultimately, a dominant extant group requires the breeding of inferior males by subgroups to maintain dominance. The high disease rate for African American infants is testament to the effectiveness of this policy.

To engender the maintenance of psychosocial security in wealthy males, it is absolutely necessary for the male to be surrounded by amenable, sexually aggressive females. This can be seen by the need for many schools for a color photograph in the college application. The photograph is necessary for college administrators to classify students according to caste and sexual acceptability.

Colleges also publish pictures of multiple women enthusiastically surrounding a lone male in college brochures. In addition, the overwhelming admission of Korean females into many top colleges over Korean males also proves this point. Korean females are notorious on campus for their desire to couple.

In some universities, the overwhelming purpose of the Korean female at the school is to marry. By placing them into a pool where there are no comparable males from the same ethnic group, universities engage in overt social planning. Clearly, the mating habits of Korean females force a restructuring of group norms.

Feminism has weakened women to the point that few women see why beta males are attracted to these ethnic alpha females. It has nothing to do with their acceptability as a mate. It has to do with the fact that many Asian women are significantly more attractive than the normative females that these beta males would normally attract.

Top universities rarely let in poor alpha males. In my own college placement advising, I am amazed at the common complaints of many women. Most are looking for campuses that resemble a Ralph Lauren advertisement. Young women are frustrated that they never see handsome heterosexual men on campus.

Moreover, these women are completely unaware of group norms and also ethnic hierarchies. When I advise them that very handsome men rarely will spend twelve years of their life garnering the education necessary to have access to a highly stressful career, they scoff at my remarks. It is hard to convince a woman who has read twelve years of advertising and watched two decades of television that their images of ambitious handsome college males are fiction.

However, WASP women rarely complain about the lack of alpha males. They are fully aware of the fact that alpha males only exist in other ethnic groups or in poorer WASP divisions. The WASPs have garnered over 95% of America's wealth that few wealthy alpha male personalities exist in their group anymore. The few WASP women, who want a sexually aggressive male, look elsewhere.

Few alpha males of any other race can get past the labyrinth of psychological examinations that are administered to obtain admission. Not only are there standardized examinations, but zip codes and birth orders are also factored in. In order to ensure poor performance on standardized exams, wealthy plutocrats due to their control of school board officials and other elected government officials, are able to inundate public high school students with extensive class work and rigorous examinations prior to any standardized test. In New York City, Bronx High School of Science, Brooklyn Technical High School, and Stuyvesant High School are flooded with multiple exams the week of the SAT®. In some cases, students are also assigned large weekend research projects that are due immediately after their SATs.

Many guidance counselors and priests today are homosexual, lesbian or have undergone voluntary castration. They routinely encourage confused students to utilize opiates or to explore their sexuality. Moreover, guidance counselors are the de facto representatives of the national security apparatus in our nations' public schools. They are legally required to tell rich students that admissions are based on a need-blind basis (they are not), and poor students that military training is more suitable for them.

In addition, many guidance counselors do not advise poor students of the admissions deadlines for colleges beforehand. This is to ensure that few male students representative of America actually get into a top college. Male students are also interviewed in the hierarchy of their caste acceptability to the university. Top private school students visit and interview at top colleges over the summer prior to the September of the senior school year. Ultimately, this is to ensure that WASP supremacy regardless of merit or financial need is maintained. Today, colleges are overwhelmingly white and female and reflect the fact that we are near the end of the Republican-led caste transformation of our nation. Few of us realize that there is no middle class and limited employment in a caste society. Just look at Great Britain and France.

In Asian countries, older men realize that they have an obligation to future generations. Thus, they would try to mentor the younger generation. This is not valid in America. Old men now dominate American colleges, universities, corporations, and virtually all aspects of the national security apparatus. This was the same situation that occurred in 1925-1935 and 1965-1973.

We are returning to a period of darkness, as our elderly oligarchs view themselves as immortal. Social progress will unfortunately stay at a standstill until these men are able to deal with death. Many parents of young teens have a hard time believing that it is absolutely impossible for a poor white male to succeed on a grand scale in this country. The Horatio Alger myth is exactly that, MYTH. Firstly, Horatio Alger never attended a public school. If he did, he would be ridiculed for his lack of wealth and fashionable clothing from day one. Secondly, if he showed ambition, he would be put in classes where the teachers are so tight with grades, that his average will be substantially lower than his less competent peers who attend private schools. Thirdly, his parents must have saved nearly $500,000 in cash for his college and professional education for him to have a chance of getting in. Finally, he must put on a brave face and make a way in the world.

The public school system in America is clearly designed to socialize and break down the psychosocial security of all poor alpha males and to prevent them from competing with the aristocracy. As the optical internet dominates the Eastern Hemisphere, America will have to come to the realization that all of our children must be educated, regardless of race, sex or wealth.

Feminization Of America's Workforce Maintains Caste

Sociologists and public health researchers routinely scapegoat physicians for denying treatment to minority Medicaid patients. However, these researchers never state that these providers are routinely investigated under Medicaid if the patient is African American. This has resulted in many doctors reducing or providing insufficient care to these patients, although they are often reimbursed quickly for non-African American patients. Few physicians understand that all social policies in America must universally benefit the aristocracy prior to it becoming law. Furthermore, such laws cannot adversely impede their control of the national security apparatus in any manner; otherwise it will not be law.

Thus, affirmative incarceration and denigging are applied to industries where few of the gentry are ever employed. Moreover, affirmative action propaganda led to further social cohesion among ethnic white families and enabled the national security apparatus to inculcate these ethnicities rapidly into the power structure. Affirmative action, and the resultant need for affirmative incarceration and denigging to remove minority workers, enabled all white ethnicities to lose most of their cultural traits as well.

The aristocracy routinely points out the progress that we have made in society towards integration. They advise that African Americans can easily sit in restaurants and ride in the front of the bus, services that require compensation to utilize in the first place. Balderdash!

Social progress by the poor cannot be made due to the continuous implementation of the genocidal policies of affirmative incarceration and denigging. When you take into account the necessity of these policies to maintain the large disparity in primary education between poor and wealthy students, an objective observer would easily notice that rights for African Americans have not really expanded at all since so called liberal legislation was passed in the 1960's. The lack of educational opportunity has continued to hurt the poor. Thus, the poverty rate for African American families remains substantial, the unemployment rate for black males remains large, and the high murder rate of African Americans in our vast concentration camps brings into question what type of government we actually have in America. Clearly, to any a student of Hannah Arendt's methodologies, it is not a democracy.

Therefore, a whitewashing of affirmative action has occurred in the media. Newspapers rarely point out that a medical or legal practice has financial value. Moreover, many WASP professionals want to pass their lucrative professional franchises for top dollar to other WASPs. Consequently, they do not want diminution of the financial value of their valuable private practices to occur. The last thing they want is a minority professional to build credibility and develop a competitive practice.

Doctors and lawyers groups are afraid that affluent blacks will go to physicians and lawyers of their own race. They are highly worried that minority professionals will obtain the credibility they had prior to the pogroms that facilitated the Great Migration. Through college alumni organizations, many doctors and lawyers have limited minority male access to medical and dental schools even in the 21st century.

Wealthy physicians combat equal opportunity by setting up tax-exempt think tanks and political organizations utilizing Section 501(C)3 of the Internal Revenue Code to develop slanted treatises. These tax-exempt racist boutiques routinely criticize affirmative action to discredit the legitimacy of minority professionals through carefully planned articles in The New York Times, the Washington Post, and The Wall Street Journal, the primary propaganda arm of the Pentagon. The Bell Curve is a great example of this type of disinformation.

Rarely do these articles ever publish the faults in the specious academic research on aptitude—nothing more than database queries of segregated communities—or state the eugenics research completed by these individuals. More importantly, the credentials of many of the researchers in the field of psychometrics are closely linked to the field of eugenics.

Few doctors and lawyers voice similar outrage towards the thousands of wealthy male students who get in to top colleges³² each year due to restricted hereditary endowments. Likewise, there is absolutely zero criticism by professional groups of the large level of homosexual and female undergraduates at schools. Many of these individuals attended school districts with significant grade inflation and weaker standardized exams³³. More importantly, few critics ever point out that poor white males with higher grades and talent are routinely rejected over lesser-qualified members of the aristocracy.

³² This is the reason that so many large schools do not give abundant financial aid as their endowments are mostly restricted to the offspring of donors from the robber baron and dry goods era. Most Americans do not read the Social Register. Thus, these families' names as well as their abundant wealth are completely unrecognizable to the 90% of American families that make less than $42,000 per year.

In the last ten years, hundreds of students have obtained a 1600 in the suburbs of New York City³⁴. A 1600 predicated a high aptitude level that was conducive to a career in science. So how could all these students who received a 1600 on this exam not want to pursue a poorly paid career in academic science?

Well the reason is that they did not get a 1600. At least not in the same way that students got a 1600 in the prior decades. Less than 1 in 10,000 ever got a perfect score during the 1950's and 1960's. A perfect score was mathematically impossible according to the College Board. They routinely investigated high schools and their students who got a perfect score.

Human intelligence cannot evolve over a decade. It takes hundreds of years for aptitudes to increase at the rate they did in the 1990's as measured by standardized testing scores. Thus, based on the theory of intellectual evolution, the high SAT test scores that occurred in the suburbs of New York City for the latter half of the 1990's were manufactured.

In the 1990's we saw an expansion in home values even though Chinese manufacturing deflation was progressing in Japan and the United States. Affirmative incarceration, instituted in the 1970's, removed African Americans from the labor supply. Surprisingly, reducing the supply of labor permitted salaries to increase. Household salaries kept Manhattan for decades had the only exam format where there were three verbal sections in a row.

³⁴ Long Island, Westchester, and Bergen County.

increasing as America was replacing the African American male labor slack with highly credentialed women. Without affirmative incarceration, wealthy women could not have entered the professions as rapidly as they did during the last three decades.

The A in SAT® was altered. It no longer stood for aptitude. To assure feminization of universities, the math on the SAT® was dumbed down in the 1990's to enable more women to get higher scores. Calculators and geometry formulas could be utilized. Likewise, arithmetic questions no longer required rounding to the second consecutive digit. Advised by the College Board's lackeys, the unregulated test preparation industry, that the exam had gotten significantly easier, wealthy school districts started to offer test prep as part of the standard high school curriculum.

Unfortunately, neither test prep nor the requisite mathematics education was offered in poor school districts. Thus, average SAT® scores fell in the 1990's for African American males. Removing African American fathers from their homes and jobs as a direct result of affirmative incarceration and denigging policies had an adverse effect on minority children. Faced with the financial destruction of their nuclear family, many African American students were forced to get part time work to make ends meet. Losing time to part time work made many of them fail in classes and get left back in high schools. This unexpected result, even though the exam was dumbed down, was the proof that many racist social scientists needed to prove that school integration was failing.

Advocates of The Bell Curve should reproduce the curricula, the atmospheric lead and asbestos, and the mediocre fat-laden school lunches of minority schools after integration, and make it the standard curricula of a WASP school district in New England. Conservatives like William Bennet, Tom Kean, and Lamar Alexander will not take the challenge, as they know how low the scores will be even before the exams are printed.

Minority schools and minority school districts are not meant to succeed. Any that are even remotely successful will face the draconian whiplash of affirmative incarceration and denigging until their nuclear families are decimated. Once the fathers have been removed from successful minority districts, these districts will once again produce failing students. Our national security apparatus is fully aware of the role fathers play in child nurturing. All you have to do is review the childhood demographic census of our concentration camps to see how many men had both parents. Moreover, further analysis will also reveal how many men are actually fathers. Any Republican challengers?

College placement during the first Gulf War period shifted dramatically. Not only did colleges roll out the welcome mat for women, but they also openly embraced the HIV lifestyle of homosexuality. Due to the educational draft deferments of the Viet Nam War, many educated homosexuals drifted to the expanding university systems for employment. These draft dodgers are in the ascendancy at all major universities. Many school districts did not publish the disparity between the scores of boys that got into top schools and girls because they did not want boys to know that their dreams were guaranteed to fall apart. Feminization of universities ultimately ensured that all poor men were excluded from equal access to undergraduate colleges.

Suddenly higher SAT scores at wealthy school districts showed that suburban school districts were smarter than poor school districts, even though principals knew via actual undisclosed admission statistics that top colleges were only accepting girls from their districts. High schools, to facilitate feminization stopped publishing the sex of students who got into top schools. Although teachers fathomed that the SAT® had been dumbed down, they soon asked for larger raises and benefits.

Homeowners readily approved increases in school budgets because they felt that the schools were working. Nowhere were they told that the policy was designed to institute a caste-based society. Consequently, this manufactured credential charade led to higher salaries for teachers and administrators even though neither the curriculum nor the teaching methodologies had advanced since the 1960's.

The high average SAT® scores in the suburbs resulted in the rapid expansion of housing values in America. The national security apparatus played into the psychological desire of feminist mothers to educate their daughters equally to men. Women who had girls felt that their daughters were geniuses and would push their sons harder and harder. These mothers rarely noticed that there was a significant sex difference between who got into top colleges. Boys with significantly higher grades were routinely rejected.

Homeowners were willing to pay higher property taxes as their home values kept increasing, even though annual population growth in the United States was falling below the replacement level for the first time since World War I. Feminization and artificially low oil prices led to a sustained increase in housing values in the 1990's. Our policy makers started pursuing the failed deflation strategy (the artificial escalation of home values) that they asked in prior decades for European nations and Japan to follow.

Furthermore, to foster the unimpeded expansion of high property values in outlying WASP suburbs, standardized testing services routinely provided copies of actual exams through back channels. I have actual proof of this, as Trademark Universal, Incorporated's IVY Verbal Review division orchestrated the Jericho School District's SAT® scandal in 2004.

I had personal knowledge that several tutors in Long Island were providing actual copies of the exam prior to the administration. I did not go to the authorities as the surfeit amount of exams available made me realize that students were only doing what was being done for years in Long Island. After all, providing actual exams to predominantly white school districts prior to their administration is part of the overall affirmative incarceration dogma and overtly strengthens the national security apparatus's control over the public and private education infrastructure.

Some of my students got exams from other students that were not released. This was the proof that I needed. I had long contended that the SAT® was administered unfairly in New York City schools. Minority schools routinely got exams laden with multiple verbal sections. These schools were centers for science and mathematics education, not reading comprehension.

Until this portentous exam took place in Jericho I had only heard rumors that the SAT® and other standardized exams were passed through back channels to WASP school districts. Now I had actual proof. And it is verifiable. The SAT® and other standardized exams are an integral step in the genocidal policy that is affirmative incarceration.

Soon schools expanded their teaching to the test curriculums to include the SAT®. In minority school districts, the exact opposite was the case. Schools with heavy black enrollments barely taught science and rarely taught math, as a matter of public policy.

By manufacturing elevated scores for WASP women, the College Board enables our national security apparatus to easily label African Americans as intellectually inferior. More importantly, it can legally transfer those who do not have a certain level of aptitude to our vast gulag and concentration camp system for their eventual extermination. Just like the Germans did with the Slavs!

By publishing statistical surveys that indicate that these people are intellectually inferior, it provides the scientific basis to enlist naïve doctors, psychologists, scientists, and sociologists to support affirmative incarceration. By making women get artificially higher scores it gets a group who due to inherent psychological and biological factors are adamantly unwilling to admit that they have a manufactured high score. Contrary to the portrayal of women on television, professional women, due to their biology, will never ever concede they are wrong.

More importantly, by correlating high SAT® scores on easy exams with WASP school districts, and low SAT® scores on hard exams with minority school districts, it can disproportionately pass on the financial benefits of affirmative incarceration to WASP school districts. This legal financial circle benefited the aristocracy's banks, law firms, rating agencies, media outlets, landlords and homebuilders. It also resulted in the expansion of our jurisprudence to make sure no one ever learned the truth.

The SAT® is an exam that is orchestrated to maintain property values throughout America³⁵. Fundamentally, African Americans must do poorly for the SAT® to be a valid predictor as African American neighborhoods must consistently be valued less than non-African American neighborhoods. Moreover, the primary purpose for the SAT® is to undermine the psychosocial security of all poor alpha males.

In the last ten years, exam score gaps between males and females have closed because so many African American and Hispanic males are encouraged not to take the exam. Affirmative incarceration and denigging policies require that government officials discourage the poor from academic achievement and encourage them to join the "volunteer" military. If these poorly educated males took the exam, the balance would clearly tip in favor of women. Thus, the SAT® has largely been feminized. The new expanded exam format guarantees that women will do better than men!

America's top twenty colleges, except for New York University, did not accept women until the late 1960's (at the earliest). Many did not accept women until the 1970's. Women were accepted into finishing schools that were the "sister" schools to all male campuses. It was assumed prior to the 1970's, that most women in America would find a mate in college.

Expansion of enrollment to women was largely based on so-called minority rights legislation designed to open doors to non-white males. Southern politicians forced a carve-out for the definition of minority to include WASP females. This exception was met with glee in the North as it was in the South.

Thus, America diluted the effects of positive discrimination policies for minorities with affirmative incarceration policies directed at the males of these underrepresented groups. This ensured that the expansion of the rhetoric of affirmative action would neither result in any change at all of the racial composition of the admission policies of nearly all private universities nor of the employment practices of large corporations.

Universities also bent over backwards to accept white females over non-white males over the last thirty years. This was necessary to feminize the professions and to maintain the barriers of the caste system that was being rapidly implemented by our national security apparatus as a response to the Hindus blowing up a crude thermonuclear device in the 1970's.

College admissions officers look for any reason to reject a minority male. Top schools are provided access to federal law enforcement databases that include parking summonses, misdemeanors, felony charges that did not result in conviction, or incarcerations due to the failure to make bail³⁶ even though they were fully aware that these blemishes were due to the national expansion of affirmative incarceration policies. This left a huge gap in the number of acceptable minority males available for admission.

³⁶ Even if you are a juvenile, universities have access to arrest data. Arrests do show up on school records. Incarceration also shows up on school records as the reason for extended absences. Wealthy school districts in Long Island regularly expunge the records of white males for drug and felony arrests, as affirmative incarceration policies must not deny these criminals opportunities. New York City police routinely give minorities summonses for the most minor of offenses. Recently, a man was fined for sitting on a milk crate. Another poor man was deported for smoking a cigarette. They are unlikely to arrest white teenage males who commit violent crimes as the police look for any excuse to not charge them.

Here are statistics according to the universities themselves:

	Washington-St. Louis	Harvard	Cornell	NYU
Enrollment	1,367	1,650	3,000	3,750
Female	50 %	47 %	48 %	60 %
Male (A)	50 %	53 %	52 %	40 %
Foreign Males (B)	4 %	9 %	8 %	5 %
Actual American Male (A-B)	46 %	44 %	44 %	35 %
Largest Male Club	Gay	Gay	Gay	Gay

The assumption here is that most of the students who come from Europe and Asia are male.

In the 1990's and during this new century, the feminization trend has not dissipated. In fact, it has only been strengthened. Women and homosexuals who barely made up less than 5% of the campuses of prestigious colleges thirty years ago are now clearly in the majority at all prestigious campuses.

American universities keep enrolling more women and homosexuals because our corporations absolutely prefer to hire women and gay men with AIDS any day, as opposed to minority males³⁷. To maintain span of control and to prevent defection capital in these vast billion dollar enterprises, corporations have also started to hire transsexual males/eunuchs as middle managers.

Moreover, the middle management of our companies is rapidly aging. These elderly men and women are declining physically and mentally and thus, they are unwilling to work with aggressive males of any race. Moreover, minority males absolutely terrify the physically and mentally infirm³⁸. It is not surprising that our Supreme Court, filled with WASP senior citizens, has strengthened age discrimination laws to protect the welfare of these physically retarding managers.

Furthermore, women of all ethnicities are unaware of their unique female biology. Females, due to their anthropological role as gatherers, respond to light and darkness differently than men and they notice subtle hues. This is how they can easily be convinced by watching color television to buy a certain brand of paper towel over a competitor's brand. Thus, women's eyes facilitate their acceptance of color-based caste barriers. More importantly, lacking testosterone, they cannot be fearless when there is uncertainty. Seeing the nightly news, they can be readily convinced through the power of suggestion that a black child will harm their child, even if they themselves have dark skin. Women are easily socialized, because socialization³⁹ provides them certainty.

This is why high tech companies are the largest employers of women worldwide. The assembly of circuit boards tends to employ far more women than men because it entails highly repetitive tasks over a small surface area, similar to knitting. Not only are women psychologically servile, they are socialized in all cultures to be less creative and less financially demanding than males. Women when faced with difficulties on the job routinely quit, as opposed to causing problems for their employers.

³⁸ Chinese and Korean men do not frighten white male or female managers.

³⁹ Women in totalitarian and theocratic regimes can easily recite dogma.

From a corporate security perspective, they are less likely than their male competitors to sabotage an operation or ruin the reputation of a firm. They are absolutely unlikely, due to the lack of testosterone in their bodies, to get violent because of the loss of their livelihood⁴⁰.

Women are far more docile than men when they are fired. No fired female worker has shot up an office yet. Most women when they are fired are more likely to see a doctor and get on prescription opiates to calm them. Corporations prefer to hire women as they are more likely to quit in their thirties for childcare reasons and the company can legally transfer their pension accruals under generally accepted accounting principles and IRS rules to executive compensation plans.

WASP supremacy mandates that only one race should have the psychosocial security to lead society. Thus, submissive women on campus play the primary role of serving as sexual conquests for the WASP majority. This consort role may, in rare circumstances today, lead to marriage.

Contrary to lesbian dogma, women do think of pregnancy with their sexual partners and they also do think of sexual partners in marriage roles. Although feminists and religious conservatives would disagree with me, many young women in America view sexual relations as a necessity to secure a husband⁴¹. This pervasive outlook on the part of female undergraduates provides a virtual cornucopia of sexual liaisons for WASP males and pretenders while in post-secondary education. The abundance of sexual opportunity guarantees these men a level of psychosocial security that cannot be undermined by more innately talented lower caste males⁴².

The manufactured insecurity of African American males due to affirmative incarceration and denigging policies coupled with the artificial credentials of females has led to corporations today having even more WASP managers. Thus, America's corporations have many female managers today in real positions of authority as a result of the rampant feminization that started in the early 1970's.

Women and homosexuals have reaped significant wealth and power in the last two decades. So rampant has been their rise that heterosexual men now want to behave like them. More and more men are feigning lisps, wearing nail polish and rouge and being effeminate because they realize that gay men and women dominate the executive ranks of thousands of America's large corporations.

Unlike their male counterparts from thirty years ago, current female managers do not regard marriage as a psychological sign of stability or as a social necessity. They routinely look at profit and loss statements and carefully countenance increases in health benefit costs. Any deviation routinely results in that person's job being eliminated.

⁴² Sexual conquest, as opposed to wealth, is the primary basis of psychosocial security in all societies.

Moreover, their subordinates are readily reminded in business magazines that marriage and pregnancy are hindrances for rising managers. The bank-sponsored propaganda against marriage ensures that women and men fail to develop a unified ego that will fight the stratification necessary to establish a caste system. By artificially keeping men and women separate, the national security apparatus can divide and conquer the masses of middle class whites (defined as those who can afford to eat regularly) to establish caste.

Corporate management in America as well as military planners (largely comprised of multiple-divorced men today) increasingly frown on lifetime marriage as they need to ensure that caste is established in American management prior to the deflationary aspects of Hindu supremacy rapidly decimate American industry. Over the next two decades, according to Trademark Universal Inc.'s Consulting Division, nearly 80% of the value of American GDP will disappear and move to China and India. For its own survival, our military is highly aware that it must ensure that economic loss must hit minority communities first, before the stratified economic layers of caste become palatable to the WASP majority.

Most WASP females are not looking to become law partners and many cannot handle the day-to-day politics of the work environment, which has been largely complicated by the vast pool of ethnic whites that are now being largely classified as WASP to establish caste hierarchies. Many departments in corporations are viewed as "Jewish", "Italian", "Russian", "Greek", and "Hungarian". Although feminization has resulted in educational and professional advancement, it has also resulted in the re-segregation of minorities at the corporate level.

Minority male college graduates carry around the psychological baggage of not bedding the women they desired in college. This is compounded further by the fact that large corporations will not hire them even if they have 4.0 grade point averages from top schools. Moreover, dark skinned men (those of the subordinate castes) are assured, due to the funnel approach of securing merit in American higher education, that they will have limited opportunity to advance to a top graduate school as well. The purpose of this constant negative reinforcement is to ensure that minorities develop psychological duress that will guarantee them the inability to develop the approximate immutability necessary to advance into the higher echelons of leadership in America⁴³. This polyester cycle of failure is necessary to maintain WASP control over the national security apparatus.

Our shrinking population of WASP males is guaranteed to develop and maintain psychosocial security as they are assured multiple sexual conquests regardless of how masculine they are. White ethnic females and Asian women are desperate to marry WASP males especially if the women are from the upper middle class (defined as those who can eat regularly and also pay for a private college). They have been socialized by advertising, religious orders, and their own secondary schooling that WASP males are superior. Many cannot escape but noting the bright colors and ambient shades of red that are in the cheeks of male models' faces. Moreover, they are inundated with regular media reports showing how capable WASP men are and how beautiful their skin color is.

⁴³ This trait is not needed in female managers. Few American males can yell at anyone and advance.

There are literally scores of women who truly want to mate with them at a university often on the first date. Many minority women, especially Korean and Japanese women, have ignorant parents who have socialized them for decades with advertising and toy baby dolls that do not have their racial or physical features. These toy baby dolls are always on television and they are the most beautiful babies. Asian women on campus today are desperate to have a white baby!

WASP fathers, on the other hand, have huge fears of their passive girls mating with minorities and especially African American men. This fear forces schools to artificially reduce the amount of minority males admitted so as not to offend this important group of full tuition paying clientele. The on-campus interview is only extended to qualified minority men to make sure that they are not too intellectually aggressive (and a threat to WASP males and ethnic white females) and also to make sure they are not excessively libidinous⁴⁴.

Wealthy WASP women really do not need a college education, except as a plausible credential for marriage. Recent statistics show Asian women out earning WASP females. These statistics do not reveal that the vast majority of WASP females (numbering in the tens of millions) in America do not need to work for a living as their husbands significantly out earn minority men.

After graduation, most WASP women will return to their suburban havens and marry the sons of a dentist, lawyer, doctor, or another franchise based profession. The luckier ones will marry the offspring of the landed gentry. Contrary to what many advocates of a Jewish conspiracy may contend, WASPS still control over 95% of America's wealth⁴⁵. Controlling such vast wealth means that status in the WASP community requires inheritance and social acceptability over emotive aggression⁴⁶. Moreover, natural selection has always been circumvented for decades by the university admissions policies that are necessary to maintain WASP hegemony over the national security apparatus.

Our national security apparatus was fully aware of the theoretical potential of the internet in the 1960's. It also fully realized that China and India would quickly be integrated into the global economy within three decades. Moreover, once Asia and Iran are fully electrified and re-emerge, our national security apparatus will lose its global relevance to age-old clan alliances between India, Russia and Iran.

Thus, it was necessary for the national security apparatus to establish a caste system in the United States if it was going to survive. By preventing minority males from accessing higher education, our national security apparatus could label them uneducable. By selectively passing the actual exams to certain wealthy school districts, military social planners could label the lower scoring poor ignorant based on their school district's zip codes. By feminizing the professions, America could stratify color differences to establish Jim Crow at the corporate headquarters. More importantly, universities and corporations expanded the WASP classification to include all white ethnicities, including Arab, Jew, and Roman Catholic; so that our nation's remaining dark skinned citizenry can be relegated to lower castes.

⁴⁶ This reflects the policies that the Brahmins put in place in India to benefit their caste.

Most of America's current management elite will retire in the next 15 years. Over the next twenty years the managers responsible for affirmative incarceration, feminization, and denigging will die. In fact, over seventy million Americans will die over the next two decades from natural causes. Furthermore, to ensure its economic relevance, the WASP community will look to any means necessary to remove minority males.

Thus, colleges are overtly admitting girls over boys, as feminization is necessary to maintain the caste barriers that took thirty years of genocide to implement. Women, due to their unique biological and sociological needs, are more likely to adhere to caste barriers. Therefore, the majority of students at top college campuses today are white females. Clearly, this is a bad omen if you are the mother of an American male⁴⁷.

Many social critics say that integration failed in America. Rubbish! If you look at the first paragraph of this section as a social postulate for our nation, then you will realize that integration was never attempted.

⁴⁷ It is also a sign that our nation is preparing for full-scale war.

Financial Firms And Their Consigliore Expedite Denigging (The Outsourcing Myth)

Pete Petersen, the amiable Mr. Rogers-like protector of impoverished billionaires, recently wrote a lachrymose account of how the Democrats hindered the US economy with benefit programs such as Medicare, Medicaid, and unemployment insurance that were not adequately funded. Not only will we face billions of dollars in expenses according to a man who has several hundred million dollars in the bank, but America's working poor should also pay more of the burden upfront.

"Just call me Pete" is fully aware that when the Democrats set up Social Security, as well other human dignity programs, that it was meant to be a safety net for those who were not covered by employer retirement plans. This is why he does not talk about the millions of dollars that he personally pocketed by doing leveraged buyouts of solid companies. By forming a lucrative cabal with management, he began firing the working poor to make the companies more efficient. Then he looted over-funded retirement programs and provided the corporate treasury intricate IOU's⁴⁸. Thus, when retirees got cancer or nervous system disorders, there were limited funds set aside to pay for these significant health insurance obligations.

Nabob Petersen today is a multibillionaire. Like John D. Rockefeller, he often portrays himself as the hard working son of immigrants. Balderdash! This is as ridiculous as Paris Hilton saying she is the hardworking daughter of an immigrant motel owner. He worries for his grandchildren in the same manner the late John D. Rockefeller did for his progeny.

He is absolutely concerned that they will have to pay their fair share of taxes due to their aristocratic status. What he is actually worried about is that his grandchildren will not be able to get a job, because affirmative incarceration will end due to the high price of oil. He is actually worried more because he is fully aware that his grandchildren are white and that skin color alone will not guarantee them a job or promotion in the optical age where genetic ability as opposed to one's race is the critical factor. Inherited wealth will not matter in a few years, as it will not be able to handle the massive deflation that the rise in Hindu supremacy will cause. Furthermore, his grandson, frustrated at the ambiguous role of men perpetuated by his grandfather's "I like IKE" generation in the future, may decide later in life to metamorphasize into his granddaughter.

Mr. Petersen made millions upon millions by looting the pensions set aside for the retirements of the working poor of industrial America. Rarely were the fat pensions of the executives wrecked. Now he recommends that Americans who make less than $50,000 pay more for everything that the Republican Senators he put into Congress get for free as part of their pension plans. The reality is that Mr. Petersen should be incarcerated for being a poor mimicry of a robber baron. Unlike those criminals from America's past, Mr. Petersen built nothing except paper wealth for the Japanese and Korean charlatans he represented.'

Leveraged buyouts were the economic lynchpin not only for Reaganism, but also for the sorry state of our public school system, as well as our on going affirmative incarceration policies. Pete loves to talk about improving public education but he never talks about expanding opportunities for smart minorities.

"Just Call Me Pete" was permitted to go to college with the GI Bill. But Negroes should earn their slots. Really, Pete! Where are your Congressional Medals of Honor? While you filed Form 13D's with the SEC, scores of poor Viet Nam veterans emptied their putrid urine-filled colostomy bags into the fetid sewers of America's heroin-filled slums.

Mr. Petersen, like Ronald Reagan, will be lambasted only after he is dead and his estate does not have the financial wherewithal to sue its critics. Unfortunately, for America, the damage has been done. An era of financial revolution occurred in the 1970's, 1980's and 1990's⁴⁹, which facilitated the departure of millions of manufacturing jobs overseas. But for some strange reason the goods never got cheaper for consumers. It resulted in the loss of entry-level jobs with pensions and health benefits that enabled countless Americans to stay out of poverty. Unconcerned about the poor, our crony capitalist aristocracy transferred these jobs under the aegis of our empire's Asian and Latin American stooges.

But were competitive pressures the real reason for the transfer? Were the costs of labor more advantageous in Asia? Do Phillipinos know how to make thongs and water buckets better than Americans? According to my analysis no! Eventually, the cache of many established businesses disappeared, as imports were often shoddy!

⁴⁹ This financial revolution mitigated the legislative advances made by the poor on our petrochemical and pharmaceutical aristocracy.

Here is my analysis of the benefits and losses to the US economy due to the leveraged buyout of RH Macy's Department Stores.

Case Example: Levaraged Buyout of R.H. Macy's Department Stores

Immediate benefit

- Profitable incentive bonuses to senior and middle management
- High interest margins to lenders
- High fee income to pension consultants, investments banks, and lawyers

Industry

- Chapter 11 reorganization enabled Macy's to push other chains into bankruptcy
- Replacement of brand names with store brands induced a shift to offshore manufacturing
- Loss of major lifetime employer in the Northeastern United States.
- Shift in workforce from union to non-union personnel

Long Term Losses

- Delay in implementing affirmative action at management levels
- Loss of middle management layers made it impossible for young workers to move up!
- Conversion of defined benefit plan to defined contribution plan eroded retirement security
- Complete loss of innovation from lower ranks (don't rock the boat)
- Weakening of labor unions
- Lenders lost billions of dollars when company filed for bankruptcy.

But the most interesting aspect is what happened to senior management. Under ERISA they do not have to have the same pension system as rank and file employees. Executives can have separate pensions that are not fully based on the company's stock. Consequently, Macy's executives were able to diversify their portfolio of risks away from the company's worthless paper stock certificates.

Few people understand what a share of stock in a large enterprise is. It is not based on any concept of value. Rather it is a derivative claim based on the business continuing on as a going concern. Few of us are aware that over 97% of American corporations go bankrupt after fifteen years⁵⁰. Why else would worthless paper be given to employees and something entirely different (called cash and US Treasury bonds) be given to senior management? The golden eggs are going to the titans of fraud, while the lifeless decaying goose is going to the employees.

Furthermore, nearly all of the compensation given to senior management consisted of payment-in-kind options and debentures that were secured by the operating cash flow and hard assets of the company. Many of these debentures had equity kickers and demand provisions that enabled the holder to demand payment if certain events occurred. In essence, they were bonds that paid more if the company did well. However, unlike stock they kept paying even if the company was poorly performing.

This was the ultimate rub. By issuing "whatever you want to call it" securities to senior managers, leveraged buyouts clearly benefited the banks and executives who formed lucrative cabals that could pull off this charade. To get politicians off their backs, LBO funds made massive donations to political campaigns.

Ronald Reagan loved Ayn Rand and believed that the gutting of defined benefit pensions would return America back to the "good old days" prior to the enactment of New Deal policies. Reaganism was nothing more than the expansion of LBOs as a matter of national policy. After Allan Greenspan was appointed Federal Reserve Chairman, our national security apparatus officially turned the handling of the economy from elected representatives to our banking system.

Similarly, many leveraged buyout funds employed the children of prominent politicians in supernumerary capacities to get access to their powerful parents and avoid legislative curtailment⁵¹. Many politicians, like Senators John McCain, Senator Bill Frist, Senator Alfonse D'Amato, and Senator Kay Bailey Hutchinson, through their spouses' or relatives' blind trusts have invested in these types of equity kicker bonds that have enabled them to financially benefit from the denigging of America's industrial corporations.

Bonds are not derivative claims. They are secure claims on the assets of an enterprise. LBOs were the first financial technique to significantly weaken the national security of the United States. During this time, many companies wasted precious human and financial resources on takeover defenses. Others reduced or eliminated their pension benefits to avoid being subject to a hostile leveraged buyout. During this period the Federal Reserve largely supported the denigging of America's pension system, as monetizing large bond portfolios overtly benefited the net income of its member banks. It, like the rest of our national security apparatus, was highly concerned with the rise of Hindu supremacy in the 21st century.

Today, the gatekeepers of our pension systems are sycophants who are very concerned with who their next employer will be, as opposed to their fiduciary responsibility to pensioners. In addition, large corporations have paid off legislators to protect themselves from criminal penalties if they gut pension plans. Thus, government officials from the executive branch to the lowly pension accountant at the municipality level are more than willing to abrogate pensions plans for the benefit of the executive team of a large multinational. By employing so many plutocrats whose prime responsibility is to loot pensions, America has mandarinized its pension system⁵². The criminals are being asked to regulate themselves. Highly unlikely, as malfeasance on the part of these fiduciaries⁵³ can easily turn into a lucrative employment contract⁵⁴ down the road with an LBO fund or investment bank⁵⁵.

The end result of the Greenspan Era is that companies have expanded employment at will to essentially terminate employees on a predictable basis, even if they are doing a good job. Denigging is euphemistically referred to as flexible labor markets. The unspoken reality of America is that minority workers are fired first.

Pension expense is real and can be readily forecasted. In prior decades it was impossible to get a job. Now when you get a job, you have nearly a 90% probability of losing it (100% if you are a minority) as soon as you are close to vesting in an enterprise's 401K employer match or close to the first leg of a pension vestment. Not a single company can state that its employee's interests (especially poorly paid scientists)

⁵²Mandarins were the wise old sycophants that facilitated the decline of the Chinese Empire and the rise of Western Dominance. See the Mandarinization of America.

⁵⁴ This is exactly how the British and Americans undermined the national security of the Chinese and Indian Empires. Payback's a bitch.

⁵⁵ In Europe and Asia, aristocrats call this a "bribe".

are aligned directly with that of its management and institutional shareholders.

Careers have been destroyed. Family formation has been delayed. Children ultimately put off. Our nation has been castrated. Leveraged buyouts have been the best form of contraception for the middle class since the invention of the IUD. Few families even have one child. Unable to have a secure retirement, many adults have put off children permanently.

However, the rank and file has largely ignored the free ride that is executive compensation because they honestly think that their pensions are safe. Everyone who will retire in 2030 on will have no pension, Social Security, or Medicare according to analysis done by Trademark Universal, Inc. I am serious. Your corporate 401K's will return nothing!

Republican stooges and their eunuchs have gutted our retirement security. This is a serious national security threat for America as the safety net we had is completely gone. Middle class families will be destabilized. Moreover, an employee who has fear of losing his job will sell our scientific and military know-how to enemies even for mere necessities.

Labor costs are continuously cited for the need to outsource. And it is a credible argument until you factor in the high cost of debt. Leveraged buyouts clearly expedited the need for outsourcing. In the 1980's and 1990's, the leveraged buyout Medicis of New York successfully gutted stable franchise after stable franchise by bribing every politician in America. Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, a Republican stooge, turned a blind eye to denigging and affirmative incarceration during this era, as he had no children, wife, or elderly parents to care for.

Since he had no one to care for or love him back in return, he put in place policies that decimated the American family! Absolutely. Not a single Republican banker or politician stalled the process.

Even Republicans who were protesting slightly were unwilling to give up on the lucrative donations made by LBO specialists. Lobbyists provided scores of professional media and public relations personnel to favored candidates. To circumvent election laws, many LBO funds and their lawyers and accountants would force employees to write $1,000 checks to a candidate. Often times they were illegally reimbursed for the moneys donated. Large corporations now hide these bribes as part of their overseas research budgets and in travel and limousine expenses.

A $1,000 check is not a lot of money if you are a politician from New York, but it matters a lot if you are a Congressman from Kentucky, Wyoming or Montana. Lawyers and accountants from Arthur Andersen, KPMG, Price Waterhouse Coopers, Vinson & Elkins, Sullivan & Cromwell, Davis Polk, Skadden Arps, Troutman Sanders, Deloitte & Touche, and King & Spalding among others lined up to make contributions to crooked politicians who favored leveraged buyouts.

Not a single commercial banker or politician has gone to jail for the economic devastation that was caused by the last three decades of LBO excess. So successful were the spin-doctors that they were able to convince Americans that LBOs made companies more competitive by firing thousands of employees.

Not a single politician talked about the high fees that went to banks or the successful increase in interest rate margins that occurred at the time.

	Pre-LBO Interest Rate Margins	Post-LBO Interest Rate Margins
Moody's Credit Rating	A : Baa3	Ba1: Caa3
Revolver	.25- .50%	.75% - 1.25%
Term Loan	.40 - 1.00%	1.00% - 3.25%
Fees	.50- 1.25%	1.25% - 4.00%
Average Interest Rate Margins To Firm	.25 - .75%	1.50% - 3.00%

Most LBO funds would lay off elderly staff and the working poor to preserve the value of their equity kicker bonds and out of the money options. LBO scam artists like Henry Kravis, Reginald Lewis and Thomas Lee quickly looted and replaced conservative bond-based pensions funds with equity based annuities. Many companies eventually wound up in bankruptcy, even though they sent almost all of their IT and back office overseas.

Why would they? The financial services lobby was responsible for most of our nation's problems over the last three decades. Due to higher interest costs, manufacturers had to fire long-term employees. Not only did this decimate the company's employment ranks, but it also removed all the workers who had the vast institutional knowledge to understand how to get things done in a company.

In order to replace this knowledge, employers started hiring management consulting firms, efficiency experts, pension consultants, law firms and business school professors. Initially, they were hired to actually effect change. Then the accounting firms were given a green light to enter into the consulting fray.

Suddenly, the accountants came in like emaciated vultures and sniffed the fat employee pensions.

"What if we could manage those funds?" they thought to themselves.

"What if we could get a piece of that invested in that dry well we have in Texas headed up by that law partner from that big Texas oil law firm?" You get the idea... All of the public accounting firms in the United States rubber-stamped their seal of approval on a level of fraud in corporate America that was largely countenanced by the regulators who were emplaced to protect America's working poor. Now you see why Andersen was convicted of fraud and forced to go out of business. Other professional service firms will soon follow.

Republicans and aristocrats control our national security apparatus. Thus, their Republican stooges and puppets on the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Home Loan Banking Board, the Bureau of Prisons, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the branches of the Department of Justice, and also scores of Republican members of Congress (and their duplicitous aides) assisted the accounting firms, the investment banks and the management consulting firms to put into place a financial system called denigging which largely enabled corporate executives to be paid sums that are unimaginable for the level of responsibility and risk associated with managing their enterprises. Most corporations today can run themselves.

Denigging is commonly called reengineering by the professional firms that utilized the term to avoid prosecution for criminal fraud. It enabled the largest benefactors of the leveraged buyout craze to replace humans with computers and the optical internet.

CEOs would routinely lambaste Asian competition and talk about the need to cut labor costs. But how come product prices never went down at the retail level even after they sent so many jobs overseas? I mean seriously, a seamstress costs $10 per hour in New York, and her equivalent in Indonesia makes 25 cents per hour, so why does the thong still cost $10 at the store.

How come executive pensions and compensation increased above or matched the amount of employee labor savings? Why were managers paid in out of the money options and not required to pay FICA taxes like all hourly employees?

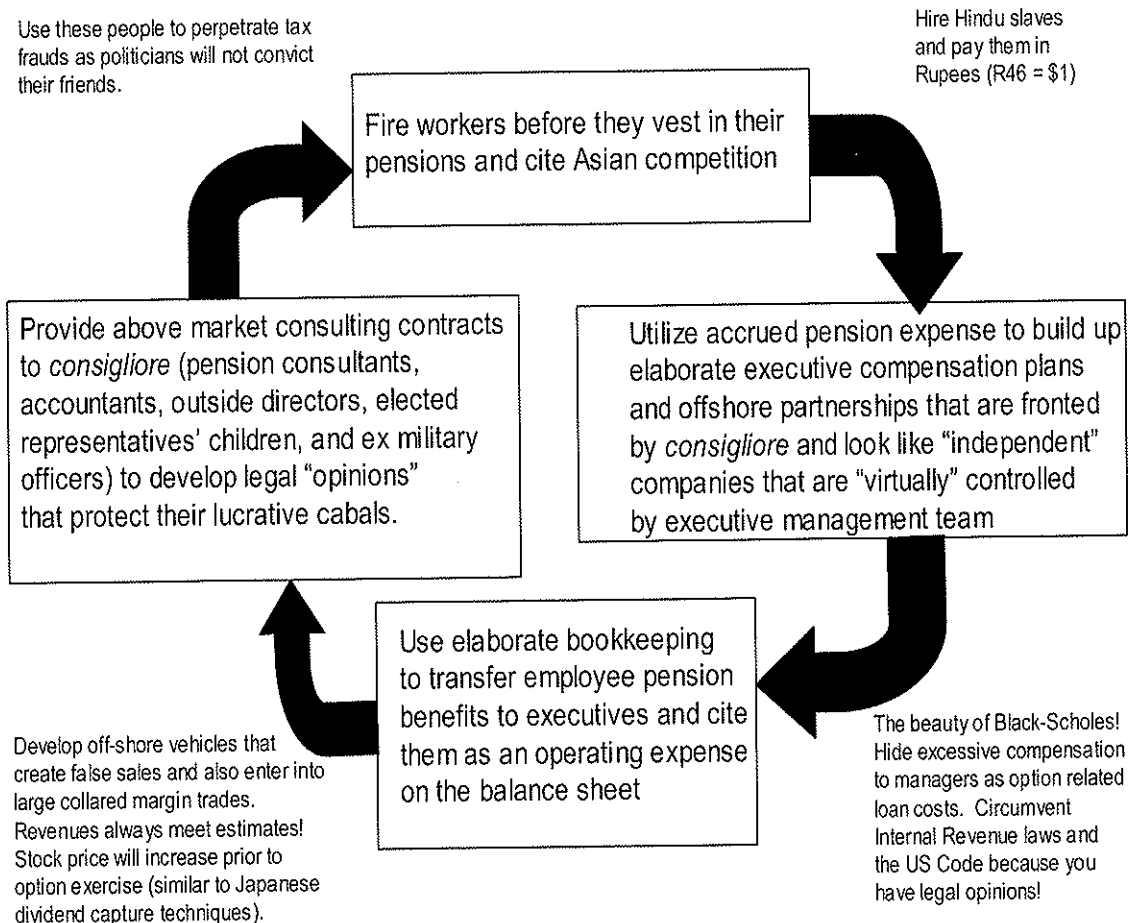

The classic case of denigging I saw was one made by a perpetrator of this fraud, a representative of a major management consulting firm. An expert at removing the working poor from the rosters of firms came and gave a presentation to the Stern School of Business. He talked about how reengineering had generated knowledge by replacing 18 hourly workers in the accounts payable function at an automotive company. So I asked him where the cost savings were? He told me the company has six hourly workers in that function as opposed to the former 18.

So I advised him that his math was specious. Not only did the manufacturer fire 12 workers making at tops $12 per hour, but it also replaced them with six computer programmers, one systems manager, and at least one service technician⁵⁶. All of which were paid approximately an average of $40 per hour plus employees duplicitous charts that showed only years when stocks out earned bank accounts. They were never told that during a deep recession, an older worker would lose nearly his entire pension due to stock market gyrations.

The Outsourcing Myth: Operating Costs NEVER seem to drop!

My biggest objection was that it would take years for the new staff to master the new system and be as productive as older workers. Denigging essentially reduced the firm's competitiveness, allowing foreign auto manufacturers to take market share. This was like kicking the guy in the face. Management consultants have no answers or solutions for real management problems. Almost all management consultants rarely advise that the only cost saving strategy they have is to fire minorities and lay off older workers. Otherwise their track record is close to zero!

All management consultants have learned to look at realistic objections with what I call the Ronald Reagan Alzheimer stare; just look straight ahead and stare into a point above someone's shoulder. Do not say anything. Just stare. It really works. And silence makes the objector look stupid because the consultant will say that he is paid so much money so he must be smart. When faced with an irrefutable fact, these masters of business propaganda are told to ignore the question. And that is exactly what this supporter of replacing humans with machines did!

The subsequent reengineering of the automobile manufacturer's accounts payable department saved no money. But it is a clear example of how technology is utilized in America. Technology is implemented to remove poor hourly workers from corporate hierarchies. This is also why feminization is being implemented nationwide. Few women realize that their jobs will disappear once the internet dominates China and India. No worker in the United States can think faster than the speed of light. Not even employees who attended top colleges. Thus, denigering is being expounded by management consultants to ultimately eliminate America's bloated middle class so that the aristocracy can establish a caste society.

Tractors, combines, bulldozers and pumps replaced the need for hundreds of Native American and African American laborers on farms. A generation ago, the PBX effectively eliminated the need for thousands upon thousands of female and African American telephone operators. No technology has ever been deemed successful unless it actively removes minority men and women from earning a living. The personal computer and word processing software has drastically reduced the need for secretaries and office administrators. Artificial intelligence software coupled with voice recognition software will ultimately remove all medical, engineering, financial, accounting, office administrator and secretarial jobs in America.

The internet is already devastating our postal service. This decade, tens of millions of Americans will slowly move into poverty due to technological change. Coupled with electronic payment mechanisms, our national security apparatus is aggressively fostering the erosion of industry that employs African Americans. During the 1980's and 1990's, companies effectively and categorically removed African American programmers and data base administrators from their payroll. They then replaced them with H1 visas, also referred to as Hindu visas, and chained them to a desk for obscene lengths of hours and paid little overtime and no health benefits. This is the same scenario that occurred with hospitals and their foreign medical staff.

Our national security apparatus absolutely will not permit African Americans to control their destiny. Faced with any form of African American independence or solidarity, our law enforcement agencies will counteract it and defeat it. Our letters and airmail are x-rayed and catalogued by the NSA every day. Moreover, our library records in New York have been looked at for decades.

To facilitate the institution of denigging policies, our security services clearly have the support of financial institutions, landlords, aristocrats, and the federal government. Furthermore, the surfeit amount of non-black judges assures that any such policy will pass judicial review and constitutional muster as African Americans to this day are not considered full American citizens in our jurisprudence⁵⁷. Unfortunately, the racist technologists of West Coast industry did not understand the demons they released when the internet went global.

The internet will change everything. It makes knowledge meaningless. And it will drastically speed up time to the point where time advantages due to geography will become irrelevant. Where there is limited time, there is no length of period to calculate interest. Thus, the role of banking and finance will diminish. Reducing time to zero also means that getting somewhere fast will become meaningless as the situation will change by the time you get there! Thus, bankers and our petrochemical aristocracy in their greed have unwillingly set up their own demise.

Most financiers are unwilling to admit what finance and ultimately money is. The former is information and the latter a derivative claim on a nation's excess cash flows. Money is stored in the vault of a bank, but the information of who actually owned that money and what it is used for is stored in the heads of humans. Prior to digitization, few people, including the regulators of the industry, comprehended what value a banker had in society. Few of us are aware that those who controlled that information pile would be able to determine whose capital needs were paramount. He could arrive at who was going to be wealthy by limiting credit to the poor. Ultimately, this information could determine the destiny not only of a company, but for a good portion of a metropolitan area as well.

But once information is digitized, it does not need a human storage device. Once a corporation has the same technology as an investment bank, why would it need their services? Moreover, once an individual has access to the same resources as her stockbroker, lawyer, doctor or accountant, why would she need to pay to use professional services again. This trend is enduring.

Bankers are also the primary reason for our awful healthcare delivery system. They have convinced us that healthcare can make a profit. Unfortunately, they failed to mention that very sick people would cost more than the fees that otherwise healthy members are willing to pay for routine care at a hospital. It is only a matter of time before natural disasters like Hurricane Katrina cause our healthcare systems to fail.

The states of Pennsylvania, Louisiana, and West Virginia (to name only three of a few dozen states) have healthcare systems that are essentially bankrupt. All three states are faced with higher malpractice rates, fewer doctors, and fewer payors (outside of the state and federal government) as manufacturing firms have disappeared. Thus, a catastrophe is in the making, as many hospitals in these regions do not have adequate financial reserves or satisfactory medical staffing to deal with a national emergency or a significant epidemic. However, the likelihood of managed care being replaced with national health insurance is zero until bankers lose most of their power in America. In the past, I would say that it was impossible. However, the internet changes everything!

Contrary to most proponents of the internet, I believe it will end the concept of finance. Let me give you a real life example. I had to contact someone at the World Bank in 1998. Many of my seniors were keeping their contacts and their phone numbers secret as success at any service company meant controlling information and they would not let the country officer's name out. One manager asked me to stop pestering him and to look it up on the internet. I looked at him critically as I could not believe the private office numbers would be available on the internet for Latin American country officers. But there it was. And it did not put a smile on my face.

Unlike most of my contemporaries who did not understand the role of information in finance, I did. This meant that someone like me would have a harder time moving up. The internet essentially guaranteed that the hierarchy of most financial institutions would stay iron clad because few recruits would have access to the private information that can only be garnered from personal networks.

The banking industry is suffering now. And prior to its demise it will take several law firms and accounting firms⁵⁸ with it. Few bankers are aware that jobs define who we are and the communities we live in. Moreover, social status is artificial as it is highly based on the incomes we can keep. Earning a living provides you the resources to teach your children, clothe your family and also to have a nice home to live in. The only way our national security apparatus can control people, like our former European oppressor did, is to encourage banks to actively destabilize communities with the burdensome cost of interest.

⁵⁸ Arthur Andersen has disappeared and many law firms are culling staff and asking senior partners to retire. It is highly likely in the next few years that law firms will go public, as their clients (multinational corporations) will no longer be able to avoid culpability by hiding behind their "could be" opinions.

It is already happening. Our service industry is enjoying its last hurrah! The Federal Reserve is orchestrating the first financial panic of the 21st century. All of this is to offset the rise of Hindu supremacy. The end result of denigging will be pogroms unimaginable to most of us. The end of which will result in the extermination and elimination of the Negro population. Consequently, the aristocracy will consolidate their hold on the national security apparatus and eliminate the concept of the middle class. A caste system similar to that which currently exists in England, Israel, and the Middle East, has no middle class. What economy survives the coming years of unimaginable darkness in our country will be divided between rich and poor. Our democracy will become an official totalitarian government like General Pinochet's.

It is ludicrous to me how many American bankers have convinced themselves that the Chinese, the Indians, the Iranians, and the Brazilians will all use WASP bankers and will not promote personal savings and develop their own financial systems fully. That is exactly how English bankers thought in 1905 when Americans started riding railroads regularly and paying for their tickets and lading in paper currency called the US dollar!

The Mandarinization of America

America is becoming more and more like Imperial China prior to its collapse. We are asking our children to be amazingly disciplined and intelligent so that their parents can have the opportunity to pay astronomical sums to attend day schools and universities. Preposterous as that may sound, American men today want to look more and more like women. Young boys have started to paint their nails and color their hair. For those who cannot hack it, the plunge into full-blown femininity is available at the local plastic surgeon's office.

Thus, we are becoming increasingly mandarinized. The over emphasis on rote learning is undermining the creativity of our educational institutions. At the core of these changes, Americans are being forced to think, act, write and dress in a manner that will enable them to obtain remuneration. Mandarinization is needed to maintain the caste-based society that America has implemented over the last thirty years through the genocidal policies of affirmative incarceration, denigging, and feminization. These steps are necessary according to the military's social planners to effectively deal with the emergence and eventual economic dominance of Hindus in this century.

Overriding Emphasis On Language

Few people understand that the Mandarins when they ruled China overemphasized calligraphy and enunciation to maintain their isolation from the masses. It is hard for many to realize that the difference between the rich and poor were that subtle. It had to be as the Chinese had little physical differences within their population. So it was hard for one distinct group to serve as fodder for the tractor that is state industry.

Mastery of Chinese characters would take decades and it all started at an early age. This is true today in America. Overwhelmingly top employers and top universities highly emphasize language to the extent that it would take intense study of the English language for anyone to master the basics of what these institutions require for admissions. One elite university requires that every aspect of the application be handwritten. In the age of scanning software, it is clear that they are using penmanship to analyze the student's abilities and overall personality. In fact, it is nearly impossible for anyone who is poor to get into that university.

In Trademark Universal, Incorporated's IVY Composition course, we prep mandarinized writing every day. Students come from all over the country to get a basic peak at the evanescent rules of successful college admission in the United States.

Over Emphasis On Idiomatic Style

Few Americans are aware of the subtle idioms of language. Even more are unaware of the style and form of how we speak is conducive to success in America. There are subtle aspects of the English language that are completely alien⁵⁹ to most Americans. For example, many Americans do not know that entertainment is a diversion from work and rest. It is not a product! However, the media routinely uses the word as if entertainment comes in a box. Language, as opposed to skin color and credentials, is what separates the upper castes from the lower castes.

Endless Schooling

Mandarin China required endless schooling. For the nobility to obtain the merits of success, it was necessary for them to obtain the necessary education that would enable them to master the subtle aspects of calligraphy, plus the completely hidden aspects of imperial style and use of language (idiom). Thus, it was necessary for them to hire tutors, and attend calligraphy institutes. The schooling never stopped.

To constantly study, the student had to be physically flaccid, as the endless sitting would drive anyone who had an athletic build insane. Chinese routinely grew their fingernails long and affected the style of females to show that they had little aggressiveness toward those in power. Long nails also enabled them to de-emphasize the fingers while holding calligraphy brushes. Thus, the letters were drawn with subtle variations of the wrist. Today, American men are actually growing, grooming and painting their fingernails to show that they do little physical work.

Although thousands of examinations were given for civil service posts, there were few slots. In addition, replacement of civil servants typically occurred upon their death, as retirement was unlikely⁶⁰. Therefore, only the top one percent could ever get in.

America's poor students face the draconian academic barriers of affirmative incarceration. Fourteen years of mandatory schooling in America is replete with annual standardized tests, off-record guidance evaluations, and critical teachers commentary that are utilized to weaken their egos for socialization. The high school years are filled with semiannual exams designed to frustrate teenage ambition no matter what. Surprisingly, the grade distributions in poor high schools actually reflect the normal distribution.

⁶⁰ Some were dismissed due to incompetence or fraud. Similar to today's modern corporations, Imperial China ran itself. Individual ability was unnecessary and sycophancy was the rule.

America's ludicrous emphasis on rising real estate values to offset Asian deflation has resulted in the ubiquitous A average in suburban school districts. In schools where there are few lower caste students, everyone has an A average. But there is a rub. Everyone with an A average cannot get access to top colleges. To deny lower castes access to higher education, the SAT® is also utilized. Nearly 3.5 million take the test and fewer than 35,000 are even in the running.

Not only are college bound students subject to extensive standardized testing but they also have to get masters degrees, doctorates and medical degrees to make a subsistence living. Students are rarely taught in high school about the appropriate economic return they should make for twelve years of post-secondary study. Few are ever taught in high school or college⁶¹ that they are employed at will and can be fired instantly for no reason, even if they have great performance reviews⁶².

By separating African American students from the majority of the poor in our public schools, they know no one will notice how affirmative incarceration is implemented at the school level. Few newspapers report the sheer number of African American teenagers that are disciplined or suspended regularly for the slightest infraction as the media serves as the propaganda arm of the national security apparatus. American males seldom notice that their African American counterparts never grow into adulthood and become fathers.

⁶¹ Unless they are members of the aristocracy.

⁶² This is mostly due to save on pension expense. The accrued pension is then transferred over to the personal accounts of executives. It is done daily through the miraculous wealth benefits of ERISA and equity-based pension fund accounting.

Endless Standardized Testing

Mandarin China tested students for hours on end. All it took was one mistake to fail an exam as tens of thousands had to take the exam. Sometimes students would "cram" for months to take an exam that would require calligraphy, oral argument as well as a significant set of complex analytical questions. The end result is that the exam would produce a student who would serve the interests of the imperial throne as opposed to his own self-interest.

Today, schools endlessly test students and make it seem that every test will result in failure. And that is the whole point. More importantly, the poor in America are subjected to endless standardized testing as part of a particular state's affirmative incarceration policies. The immediate goal of most standardized tests is to break the egos of poor children, long before they are fully formed. Ultimately, states hope the child will drop out of schooling and pursue a criminal career that will land them in one of their concentration camps⁶³.

The new SAT® is a step in this direction. The exam for decades was a three-hour exam. Feminization policies in the 1990's favored girls on the exam. Currently, the exam format is a little over four hours. It includes a hand written essay (form and style), extensive reading (language) and less than thirty minutes of rest breaks. If you include the amount of time it takes to fill out the personal data grids and the time it takes to get to an exam center, then the total test time could easily exceed six hours. Slowly the exam's length is approaching the length of exams held in ancient China.

The Emergence Of American Eunuchs

The emasculation of men, literally, to obtain gainful employment was a key aspect of Mandarin China prior to its internal collapse. When China fully centralized power in the Imperial Court, men of distinction who were not nobility could garner a position by emasculating themselves and becoming eunuchs. This is unique to Mandarin China as self-castration was a voluntary act as opposed to punishment carried out on prisoners by the state. By joining the large group of eunuchs, a poor person with great intellectual ability could obtain the minimal level of influence necessary to expand the position of his lowly family. Consequently, the eunuch would help his relatives get better positions throughout China's bureaucracy.

Few Americans are aware of the vast number of eunuchs in the middle management ranks of the United States today. It is highly likely that in ten years, the Fortune 500 will have its first eunuch CEO! American males are increasingly opting to become women. Many men are now cutting off all of their sex organs and becoming female⁶⁴. They then take hormones to grow breasts and sweeten their voice.

But why would a man chose self-neutering? Maybe it is because affirmative incarceration and feminization policies require that boys be disciplined heavily for the slightest offense. There is also less emphasis on the abstract and conceptual in schools. In addition, multiple choice answers favor guessing as opposed to memorization. These pedagogical techniques overwhelmingly favor girls.

Our extensive use of standardized exams that favor girls as well as a feminized school curricula are overtly designed to disorient boys⁶⁵. While their parents keep pushing them to work harder, the system is designed to make the male ego obsolete. Likewise, competitive colleges also require boys who are not the sons of alumni to have much higher scores and credentials than girls whose parents are not alumni.

More importantly, at the start of the 21st century, older executives dominate our universities, charities, churches, and multinational corporations. They are physically infirm and their mental faculties are slowing. They are also set in their ways. These men prefer to hire transsexual females, as they are unwilling to hire men who are significantly younger than they are.

Men are employed at will and are routinely fired for doing a good job. The majority of minority men are laid off or fired prior to the vestment of pension benefits. Seeing their fathers suffer the humility of job loss is difficult for sons to accept. Moreover, few children are aware that affirmative incarceration is the de facto policy of the national security apparatus.

Television shows routinely show stupid boys with limited ambition. But boys are not stupid! Boys with dreams built every building in New York City. All of the empires on our planet were built by boys. Many boys can read between the lines of college admissions guidelines. They are fully aware that we live in an aristocracy that masquerades itself as a democracy.

Teenage boys are fully aware that our gentry are slowly devolving and accepting fascism to protect itself against the inevitable deflationary forces of Hindu supremacy on the American experiment. Many boys have simply given up being aggressive today, as the trait is not tolerated in American society at all. Aggressive males are routinely disciplined in schools today and the teachers routinely give them lower grades. They are routinely shown disheveled faces of poor blacks mercilessly beaten or murdered for minor crimes by the brown shirted, urban Waffen-SS that makes up the first leg of our national security apparatus. The black billy club almost screams, "This could be you". Ultimately, all boys are afraid that they will wind up in a gulag or concentration camp to be reeducated.

Ever since Johns Hopkins University perfected sex transformation surgery in the United States, it has trained many surgeons who routinely transform scores of men into women each year. The data in the chart below is based on Trademark Universal, Incorporated's own highly conservative estimates. It does not include the thousands of men who routinely go overseas for self-neutering. Nor does it contain the hundreds of European and Middle Eastern eunuchs that routinely immigrate to the United States each year.

The chart below clearly indicates that men save money to become eunuchs as the population continues to trend up. Transsexual women also have legal protections in society that few men have. The chart also implies that many men have the financial resources to cover the costs of self-neutering. More importantly, the rampant growth of

Mandarinization Requires Eunuchs To Serve As Middle Management

Mandarinization follows the implementation of genocidal social policies necessary to combat deflation. The feminization of university admissions means that colleges will not tolerate masculine boys in coeducational institutions. Older Baby Boomers are also unwilling to work with younger males. Consequently, tens of thousands of men each year are voluntarily castrating themselves or becoming women to get into graduate schools and to get better paying jobs. The alarming growth of this class of female proves that American firms are actually hiring transgendered professionals.

eunuchs in America indicates that eunuchs are being readily accepted by universities for education, by landlords for tenancy, by employers for labor, and alarmingly by heterosexual males for marriage.

While feminization, denigging, and affirmative incarceration are utilized to institutionally maintain psychosocial insecurity in minority groups, America's aristocracy utilizes widespread mandarinization to maintain its span of control over its caucasian majority. Most importantly, these policies are needed to maintain the caste system that has taken thirty years and countless state-sponsored assassinations and executions to establish. A caste system is needed to offset the deflationary effects of rising Hindu supremacy on the vassals who support our vast national security architecture. Clearly, these patently genocidal policies are leading to the voluntary emasculation of white males in America, as the preceding chart shows.

America's aristocracy (utilizing affirmative incarceration, denigging and feminization) has successfully obfuscated the fact that nepotism, inheritance and caste have always been the drivers of economic success for the last 50,000 years of human existence⁶⁶. The rich have successfully camouflaged privilege with the polyester veil of merit. The psychological effects on children, especially boys, due to these destructive policies and the consequent mandarinization of our educational systems are rarely discussed. It is clear from the evidence presented in this book that America's colleges and schools, as well as its medical establishment in general discourages masculinity. Ultimately, the mandarinization of America has led to the macabre, the voluntary metamorphoses of America's boys into girls.

Over Reliance On Opiates

Payback is such a bitch. When Commodore Perry and his English counterparts decided to start shipping contraband to Chinese ports, they had no idea turnaround would ever occur. As far as the West was concerned, China was in decline. By enabling the average Chinese to get inexpensive opium, western pharmaceutical salesmen were able to corner the market. The Chinese facing bureaucratic largesse, a rising Russia, an emerging Japan, and a dominant England had little to look forward to. Ah, the sweet joy of a little opium. What a wonderful feeling. Not a single drug in existence today can match the long duration of ecstasy that opium provides. Furthermore, the high can easily last two to three days. A profound experience and one that easily leads the first time user to addiction.

⁶⁶ Our vast system of concentration camps and gulags prevent dissent from being aired in public.

Now we in America face the same prospects. The Baby Boomers have gotten everything for nothing. They did not have to go to war as the poor fought all of their wars. They did not have to pay high taxes. They did not even have to pay for retirement.

Faced with the ills of Viet Nam, old age and child rearing, they have increasingly looked to narcotics as a solution to the age-old problem of having responsibilities, which exceed the amount of time on their hands. Heroin, codeine, morphine, and opium are making a resurgence in America. The resultant demand and increasing use of the drug, as Americans' age is startling.

Heroin derivatives will be a major source of pain and relief for America. In addition, women are on all forms of artificial opiates including sleep aids, tranquilizers, and anti-depressants. All of these drugs' capabilities can be replicated by heroin and opium easily. The recent withdrawal of several COX-2 pain relievers is an opening for the return of heroin as a pain reliever. More importantly, it is nearly the last link in the chain of broad social decline.

Prostitution As An Occupation

Increased usage of opiates will lead to greater drug addiction. This can only lead to social decline. All women cannot garner the same financial resources as men. There will be ten of thousands of women who will be unwed, especially as eunuchs increase as a percentage of the population. Those who cannot secure appropriate education and employment will look to prostitution as a way to garner remuneration.

Today, prostitution is the largest occupation in the United States for women. More women are employed in the United States as whores than in any other professional capacity. This is why prostitution is not taxed in the United States. If it was taxed and whores had to pay payroll taxes, we would never ever need to overhaul the Social Security system.

Prostitution alone has financed the backbone of La Cosa Nostra in the United States for seven decades. Even mainstream film has become more lewd and real to reflect the declining morals typical of a society where banks control all industry. Moreover, films make fun of the pimp and hustler, rarely showing how they get girls addicted to speed and crack prior to launching them on a one-way trip to hell.

Not only has the internet expanded pornography into a $50 billion global industry, but it has also enhanced opportunities for pimps, hustlers and drug dealers to lure women into the sinister world of prostitution. A career in pornography is also the number one gateway to a life of prostitution. Without porn, there would be no AOL and the internet would be dead. One of the main reasons that prostitution is not taxed is it would alarm citizens that La Cosa Nostra is that large in the United States.

Prostitution is so pervasive in America's cities that American Express, Visa and MasterCard offer volume discounts to pimps who can set up an out of state limited corporation. Many investment banks, law firms, insurance brokerages, charities and state agencies regularly use "escort" services to reward top clients. The IRS also allows entertainment deductions for these patently illegal activities. Go to a hotel in New York City at 10:30pm and all the pretty girls in the lounges are whores. Nearly all of them are being paid for by the expense budgets of multinational corporations.

Large money center banks also enable La Cosa Nostra and criminal syndicates to make legal wire transfers to Russia, Hong Kong and off shore havens in the Caribbean so that they can move their funds from one illegitimate operation to the next. These institutions also cater to the narco-traffickers that grease the endless cycle of off-balance sheet, military "black" projects⁶⁷ that keep the national security apparatus in power.

With the widespread use of opiates throughout our nation and the need for excessive schooling, many women choose the life of being a whore as opposed to emotionally supporting a husband and being his wife. Motherhood is not presented positively at all by the propaganda arm of the national security apparatus.

Most of Europe is a caste system as are all of Latin America and the Middle East. Caste is ultimately necessary to maintain the national security apparatus in Europe, South America, North America, and the Middle East. By keeping the brown skinned peoples of the world illiterate, WASPs can easily tell them what the words mean. It is powerful to witness in practice. The poor are convinced due to their innumeracy, as well as their cultural and scientific illiteracy, that the their oppressor is God!

Without a caste system, America cannot effectively deal with the coming century of what will be Hindu supremacy. Since most children and adults can read in America, there is a need to convince them that they do not know what they are reading. Thus, standardized exams are being emplaced to convince them that they do not know how to write or add.

Caste has been established in America through the genocidal policies of affirmative incarceration and denigging, which were forcefully implemented by the gentry starting in 1973 as a bulwark against an emerging India. Feminization and mandarinization of the educational system is essentially complete as the new SAT® guarantees that only upper castes will have access to higher education. More importantly, Americans have phantom wealth (stocks and mutual funds) whose value can easily be manipulated by negative propaganda in the media.

Some Americans will spy on their neighbors and kill them to prevent their 401K from losing value. Countless Americans have burned the homes of African Americans who have moved into their neighborhoods. It was relatively easy to implement caste in America once the aristocracy consolidated media control.

Thus, no one will dare say that housing prices are linked to the state sponsored murder of the poor. Since no one will broadcast or print it, it cannot be true. Ultimately, there is no dissent because there is no opposition. Few Americans are aware that it is human capital that fights deflation, as opposed to financial capital.

Let me be honest and state that many Americans will never view African Americans as human beings. To do so would be to admit that the policies implemented by our national security apparatus over the last three decades were illegal and immoral. I believe that Mandarinization will clearly lead to pogroms (similar to what occurred in New Orleans) throughout the United States that will make Nazi genocidal policies look like children playing hide and seek.

You can read more about the steps to World War III, as well as the extinguishment of all life on this planet in the next two books in this series, The Rise of The Fourth Reich, and World War III.

The Rise of Hindu Supremacy

The newspapers seem to be filled with stories about how the illiterate Chinese population, one that does not respect law, religion, or individual freedom will somehow take over the world. It is a canard, similar to the preposterous Russian myth propagated by our State Department for decades. China cannot possibly take over the world. Its military is weak and over focused on defeating unorganized enemies who fight with bamboo staffs and homemade bombs. Moreover, its weapons are mediocre at best and can easily be jammed, destroyed, or made redundant by superior Western technology.

More importantly the hallmarks of a great civilization--free family formation, job creation, availability of food and clean drinking water, laws that prevent exploitation of the poor, and private savings--are not evident at all in China. The CIA, NSA, and FBI are completely wrong because China faces a population bomb far dire than ours in the next decade. Unlike our society's social mandates, there are no public benefits available to China's aging population that will ameliorate their passing into the next phase of existence.

China, without possessing the rampant central bank supported homosexuality of Europe and America, has effectively destroyed the family unit. Children refuse to get married today as few women want to take care of four elderly parents all at once in their household. If you add a child to the mix then their meager earnings will suffer more. Amazingly, Chinese Communist cadres accomplished this without the massive propaganda the Japanese instituted to create their depression economy. In fact, marriage in China is slowly being reserved for those who actually have extra siblings.

By adopting the ludicrous one child policy, China now faces the unfathomable reality of hundreds of thousands of families taking care of both sets of parents at the same time. Regrettably, China has no retirement homes or hospices for the aging. It has few hospitals or sanitary health clinics in rural villages. Furthermore, the Chinese government still rules the elderly population the way all civilizations have ruled over the old, with incessant nostalgia and the threat of physical violence. Not since the Cultural Revolution have the elderly Chinese been so overwhelmed with fear of the unknown.

Family formation should never be hindered in a scientific or theocratic society. The end result of reducing people's ability to have children is the inability for the elderly to accept aging with alacrity. We can readily see this in America and Japan where ambulances have to literally come in to take the bodies of octogenarian managers from their office desks to the hospitals for another emergency life prolonging surgery fully paid for by the state.

Anyone who thinks those who have institutional power and financial wealth will give up that power probably never understood the human condition to begin with. Few people know that China is not a threat to anyone but the Taiwanese, Koreans and the Japanese, and only because of their large army and the region's topography⁶⁸. However, old age is creeping up even faster on China's neighbors. Not only are its neighbors dying, but there is also another society that is growing at a faster rate than the Chinese and this society is a clear threat to American sovereignty.

Being a democracy, it cannot manipulate its GDP statistics like the Chinese or the United States. Its established law, derived from the precepts of Greek law, prevents it from enacting affirmative incarceration policies. Lacking a large minority population to kill off every year (in order to pocket their tax receipts) like we do in America, this democratic nation is putting laws into place to encourage free family formation across religious and class lines.

This society has also firmly established precedents to prevent female sex abortions, something neither China nor America has been able to prevent for three hundred years. Enterprise zones and export initiatives have been put in place to foster job creation throughout the country. The free market availability of food and clean drinking water has been a goal for this nation since millions of people died in one of the worst famines ever induced by Lord Winston Churchill. This country is also starting to reign in its aristocracy⁶⁹ and foster private savings⁷⁰ without massive tax inequities. Who is this society? This society is the free and democratic Republic of India.

Many prognosticators have talked about the effect of the Three Gorges Dam on Chinese development. But few understand that the Chinese are completely underdeveloped culturally. Along with mass innumeracy and illiteracy, the Chinese have thoroughly destroyed their ancient culture and laws in their rural villages. Many towns have hundreds of thousands of ⁶⁹ All rajahs and their offspring are private citizens. They are no longer the children of God.

⁷⁰ Microcredit for cows and sewing machines have enhanced rural capital formation.

residents but no established university or schooling system.

There are no critics of the government. By replicating the same propaganda techniques that the United States uses, China's Communists have been able to obfuscate the fact that millions of their people are rapidly aging with no federal support network. By keeping nearly 700,000,000 of its rural poor⁷¹ out of television and movies, China has convinced ignorant outsiders that it has staged an economic miracle.

No government officials would dare criticize the mass exodus of Chinese teenagers to the city seeking jobs making paintbrushes, gelatin molds and thongs in lead-filled factories. This annual migration has resulted in limited passing of laws to improve the lives of the infirm left behind. Many of the rural elderly have to fend for themselves, as there are no institutions in the village to care for the now childless poor.

The Chinese clutch their communist slogans in the same manner that advocates of globalization grasp at trade treaties, hoping that rhetoric and statistics will fill empty bellies. The young are leaving for jobs that are just as dead-end as growing chickens on a farm. But unlike the farm where the poor farmer is respected by his family, the city has no sense of place for the unsophisticated newcomer. Chinese youth are slow to realize the truth about market capitalism: that rapid urbanization i.e., a person traveling from a small town to a city, is mistakenly defined as social progress.

Most cities do not have even basic health clinics to deal with sexually transmitted diseases or pregnancy, ⁷¹ This is a conservative estimate at best as China, like America, has no poor people!

let alone critical care. Women, seeking the accoutrements that can be purchased with wages, suddenly realize that most of their earnings are taxed through consumption. They cannot tell how the system works as they can never rest and think. The constant speed of movement prevents the Communist Chinese to realize that communism is just another form of WASP imperialism.

Slowly, Chinese youth are now learning about "The Chips of Wrath". By inducing people to pursue factory work making computer chips that sell in the world market for pennies, an Oriental tragedy is occurring. Few are aware of the deadly long-term health consequences of working in chip factories. By not knowing that WASP imperialism has been renamed "market forces" in the lexicon that currently dominates Communist thinking, many workers spend their limited savings on rent, cell phones, and narcotics. Few can comprehend that they will also suffer from whiplash when deflation spreads to China due to the rise of Hindu supremacy.

Those villages and towns that will receive hydroelectric power have no laws, no competitive finance networks, no roads, and no schooling systems. They are nothing but backwater villages⁷² that will take at least three decades to develop into basic towns. And that is only if the Chinese marry and have children. So many waves of genocide have occurred in China that the country no longer has millions of minorities to target and imprison in gulags like we do in America.

World Bank and IFC prognosticators will also tell people that India faces the same risks. But Indians are neither communists nor capitalists! They are the last freethinking people on the planet. Indians love books, knowledge, math, writing, political debate, freedom of religion, and art. More importantly they love profit. They hate thievery and corruption and most have to put up with it because there is no infrastructure to check it. Electricity from the vast system of dams being built along the Narmada River will enable Indians to rapidly put in electronic mail and video systems so that bureaucrats can be regulated by the rule of law. Email alone will allow India to leap frog at least five hundred years of development.

Email will prevent the rampant theft of checks and financial information from residents. It will also greatly reduce the number of bribes paid to bureaucrats to correct deficiency notices, traffic fines, and changes of address. Email will also facilitate the adoption of identification systems that will enable Indians to develop better maps and road systems.

As cheap electricity inundates the dammed valleys of Central India, abundant energy will become available to crush stone and to heat up asphalt to make massive roads and sewer networks. Most of the land for this will be confiscated by the state. Because of its ability to build infrastructure that facilitates the growth of intellectual capital quickly, the Republic of India is a clear and present danger to the national security of the United States of America.

But why would a backwards civilization be a threat to Western democracies? Because Indians are now having babies at an alarming rate. India lacks the huge financial conglomerates that have successfully deconstructed religion and marriage in the West into its core components [procreation, education, consumption, wages, taxes and pension]. By attributing interest costs to each leg of human existence, America's banks have castrated its males!

Many Western intellectuals fail to see the link between high incarceration, rampant interest costs and the societal need for homosexuality in a consumer consumption society. The Federal Reserve system has actively supported the growth of homosexuality over fatherhood as homosexuals make better banking customers. Lacking children (and consequently future heirs), their resources are focused entirely on current consumption.

Homosexuals are the dominant purchasers of studio apartments in New York City. They are the best customers for expensive pharmaceuticals as they are routinely carriers of virulent HIV, viral tuberculosis, HPV and Hepatitis A, B, C, D, E and unclassified sexually transmitted pathogens. These diseases are deadly and can easily be passed onto the general population. But unlike poor African Americans, non-African American homosexuals can readily get high paying jobs at universities that have gold card health benefits. Unlike fathers who have children, these men face limited risk of being fired as companies today go out of their way to hire homosexuals. The sheer growth in eunuchs as employees in America is bulletproof evidence of this fact.

By hiding behind ludicrous privacy statutes, HIV+ men who are doctors, bankers, chefs, and university administrators' pass their various diseases with alacrity to an unsuspecting youth population. Our entertainment conglomerates also support the spread of homosexuality by providing easy email access and free pervert portals such as Craig's List and AOL's buddy lists. As the diseases spread, more and more patients show up for anti-viral care. But somewhere along the journey, central bankers failed to advise the rest of us that drugs couldn't arrest the spread of these deadly diseases.

The chart below is an accurate description of a dual income, homosexual couple. By fostering the premise that children are costly, our banks have successfully utilized interest as effective contraception.

Central Banks Promote Homosexuality

	Heterosexual Couple With Two Kids	Homosexual Couple
Income	40,000	80,000
Lifetime Earnings	1,600,000	3,200,000
Taxes Paid	480,000	960,000
Lifetime Child Care Expenses*	108,000	--
College Tuition For Two Kids*	60,000	--
Money Available For Consumption And Pharmaceuticals	952,000	2,240,000

*Assumes that the children are healthy and go to public schools and public colleges

Psychologists, paid by banks and pharmaceutical giants, routinely tout homosexuality as normal. Furthermore, homosexuality is encouraged in our vast private school system. Prep schools set up as 501C(3) charities charge large tuitions and demand huge donations (essentially enabling wealthy people to deduct their tuition costs along with their local property taxes on their tax returns) for manufactured credentials.

To maintain their vast tuition bases, private schools have less demanding curriculums and over 50% of students graduate with an A average, even though A's should represent only ten percent of the class. This cudgel of meritocracy is utilized to prove that the poor are intellectually inferior. Our private educational system is a farce that is fully supported by the Department of Education, a critical gatekeeper for the national security apparatus. The PSAT® is given to these schools on weekdays when the administrators are fully aware that kids will score higher. Public schools must take the PSAT® on Saturday because that test day will produce lower scores.

Prep schools get around standardized testing by offering free tuition or honorarium to the same consultants who prepare standardized state aptitude exams. By teaching similar questions to those on the actual exam, their students do better. Elected school district heads who refuse to play the polyester credentials game are routinely sacked by the aristocracy. Moreover, many standardized exams are given at optimum times so that the aristocracy can maximize scores. Over 90% of private school students go on to feed the private high school system and private university systems that perpetuate the charade of high aptitudes.

Meanwhile, universities never publish academic research as to a consumer consumption oriented society's economic preference for homosexuals over heterosexuals with children. The figures in the above chart speak for themselves. Sociology departments never talk about homosexuality as a social construct. Rarely do university economists or the Federal Reserve point out that homosexual couples consume more in a society that focuses on interest income.

By incarcerating unemployed heterosexual men when they reach adulthood, the national security apparatus can control the number of poor citizens who vote. More importantly, while incarcerated many male prisoners perform homosexual acts to survive or they risk being killed. By encouraging such behavior in prison, the national security apparatus hopes that young men who are raped in prison either become homosexual or catch HIV. If they become homosexual, they will not have children and can earn more. If they catch HIV, they will use anti-viral drugs for the rest of their natural lives. In addition, their death will not be blamed on the system, but on themselves. Thus, either choice will lead to greater interest income, via deposits for FICA or antiviral drug purchases, for the member banks that control the Federal Reserve.

For a genocidal policy to be effective, the oppressor must never be found out. Why Hitler was so successful was that he murdered the poorest of the poor first. Unbeknownst to many, this vicious cycle of incarceration and homosexuality is nothing more than a circle of death. Few of us would condone the murder of the poor if we knew about it. The national security apparatus has become enraged at members of the populace who point the above facts out. These members, like the former Governor of Illinois, are now targeted for redundancy. It is highly likely that he will die of a sudden heart attack or a plane crash in the next year.

The majority of Indian men, unlike poor young men in the West who increasingly opt for homosexuality due to the high interest costs associated with matrimony, still look forward optimistically to marriage. India, unlike Europe, Israel, Australia and America, lacks a large minority group to affirmatively incarcerate and murder each year to create jobs in rural backwaters. Thus, Indian society has historically looked to marriage as an effective tool in destabilizing poverty.

Moreover, the demographic crisis of aging parents in India is muted, as the poor have many offspring. At least one child is responsible for the care of the parents, a social compact that has existed for centuries. Since they have multiple offspring there is less likelihood that one household will be left with two sets of parents to take care of at the same time they have to rear children. Marriage and the need for children are a source of wealth for husband and wife (and in laws). This focus on human capital is anathema to the West's central bankers, who are nothing more than proselytizers of homosexuality.

Recently, India's farm cooperatives and agribusiness started disposing of grains and milk to maintain prices. Smiles must have appeared all over farmers' faces, as it took four decades for the Green Revolution to be a success. India, unlike China and Russia, can now feed itself and still have tons of food left over, like we do in the United States, to destroy to maintain prices and profits. This means that as India ages, it will have plenty of food to feed the elderly. Surpluses will continue to rise as the elderly population traditionally consumes less. It is only a matter of time before India institutes food stamps and free school lunches to support its large agricultural base.

India is building roads faster and faster out to the suburbs. However, urbanization trends will eventually decline in India, as the internet and cellular telephone technology will avert the need for large highways and freeways. America built vast concentration camps in isolated lands and on islands to prevent people from seeing how it murdered the poor. The rapid growth curve in India will enable it to avoid the disgusting policies of affirmative incarceration, denigering and feminization that have crippled the West, Europe and the Middle East.

Unlike the West, India has removed the caste biases of all of its states. To be direct, discrimination persists. However, the internet will ultimately facilitate mail, news, as well as money transfer. It will also eliminate caste biases. Enterprises and cities that discriminate will quickly realize how deadly email is as alienated groups will be aware instantly of a business's stupidity. The government has firmly put in place positive discrimination policies that have actually dramatically reduced poverty, as opposed to America's expansion of poverty over the last two decades. The results of India's focus on reducing poverty are evident in every information systems department and urban emergency room in the United States.

Unlike our nation, which eviscerated affirmative action and inheritance tax policies to maintain the wealth of its petrochemical and software nobility, India has no permanent aristocracy left. It has an overabundance of poor, hungry men to work in its fields, schools, military, and office complexes. India, along with other developing countries, has been providing America thousands of male scientists, male doctors, and male professors, because our nation has effectively feminized university admissions and the professions.

By legally and socially limiting the role of African Americans in society through denigging, affirmative incarceration and feminization, and building massive transport systems into rural areas, America was able to build a vast concentration camp and gulag apparatus to systematically annihilate its poor (the African American and Native American populations). The taxpayer costs for this system's oil and retirement benefits are choking our nation's ability to adjust to the optical age. Unable to dismantle the fascist infrastructure of the national security apparatus it established to combat Communism, America is inadvertently fostering the rise of Hindu supremacy.

India cannot and will not ever implement affirmative incarceration. Suffering under the ruthless weight of a caste system gone mad for three centuries, India is now seeking to implement policies to foster private wealth and the assimilation of groups into the democratic process. Drug addiction is not a crime in India, but an illness. India's prisons are not a source of jobs for the undereducated and rural poor. Incarcerating their fellow citizens to create jobs and rising property values is just plain ludicrous to any sane Indian.

Like all civilized societies, India, will not forgive murder. Those who are convicted of it are incarcerated. Moreover, the country banishes hardened criminals to the Andaman Islands with no risk of ever returning to society. America by portraying all crime as a function of race has created an aggressive national policy of incarcerating people solely because they are poor and black⁷³. Few Americans realize that with the rise of Hindu supremacy, there just are not enough black people to put in jail to create the supernumerary jobs that have fostered our McMansion and SUV lifestyle throughout the United States.

I have noticed that new caucasian immigrants to our country are willing to break countless laws (drug dealing, counterfeiting, and gun running to name a few) because they have quickly realized that America's police seem to only apprehend African Americans⁷⁴ and ⁷³ However, there are abundant laws that are on India's books that can be utilized to incarcerate any felon whenever the bureaucracy wants to.

⁷⁴ Why does La Cosa Nostra exist? Who or what does the NSA listen to these days? Nearly $1 trillion in listening equipment and the Italian Mafia, the Israeli Mafia, the Medellin Cartel, as well as Russian organized crime roam free and unabated in New York. What is the FBI up to these days? Has anyone noticed how Bernie Kerrick almost headed the Department of Homeland Security and had relationships with various criminal syndicates and former convicts? Not only did he embarrass the President, but he also seriously embarrassed residents of New York City!

Hispanics. Middle class students have also realized that prosecutors seem to only go after people who cannot afford legal representation. In my last eight years, wealthy children that I have mentored have tried to sell me drugs, guns, and stolen merchandise. I thought these acts were illegal and now realize that most of our law is considered to be farce by our aristocracy.

Many of my students have also told me that their African American peers have been expelled or suspended for the tiniest infractions in school. Meanwhile, kids with severe emotional problems, drug addictions, and violent pathologies are allowed to progress in a system that views aggression as unforgivable only if it is perpetuated by someone who has dark skin!

If you do not think affirmative incarceration does not exist, you should go to America's public schools and ask for the racial breakout of suspensions and expulsions. The startling discrepancy between the amount of suspensions that poor students receive would shock you. Many schools eliminate and destroy the records of violations for students who are not from minority groups as part of their records retention policy. The data from public schools proves that our law and jurisprudence are enforced only on our lower castes and thus we have a system of affirmative incarceration.

Muck like Rome and Egypt before it, America is hampered by its own ethos. This ethos has been indoctrinated in all aspects of the national security apparatus and will not change. Fundamentally, at its core, the American legal and national security establishment continues to believe that the Negro is inferior. Prior to the Negro, it was the aborigine.

Aborigines are no longer a viable threat to the national security apparatus as they represent less than 1% of the US population. The national security apparatus is convinced that aborigines will not survive this century, as narcotics, depression, and poverty hamper their societies. Victory!

Unlike America, India's people are free and routinely argue about everything. I can honestly say that criticism of the wealthy or those in power does not exist in the West anymore. Freedom of speech is not an oxymoron in India as it is currently in the United States and Great Britain.

The internet is what really will benefit India, as they love literature, but they cannot afford to buy books. The vast intellectual property establishment set up by the West to protect their propaganda zaibatsus will hinder their ability to change. Thus, the internet will lead to the greatest flowering of civilization ever recorded!

250,000,000 million free, God-fearing Hindustanis will have access to books, recorded music, mail, bill pay, and weather reports and it will not require ten trillion dollars in infrastructure to build nor will it require destructive genocidal social policies to foster. Clearly, the age of darkness will end for the youth of the Indus Valley and we will see a flowering of civilization that will make the rise of the West look like the fantasies of illiterate pistachio sellers at an Iraqi bazaar.

India stands for everything the United States does not believe in—the primacy of the father, motherhood is an important occupation, affirmative action for the poor, freedom of religion, the views and beliefs of Mohandas Gandhi, all are God's children, measured profit, responsibility is not a word, heterosexual family formation, people with dark skin are human, and ultimately freedom of speech.

Our nation used to believe in these principles prior to establishing our empire in the Western Hemisphere during the 20th Century. Faced with the global threat of communism landing on our shores and our inability to control our frontier-oriented population, we took the same road that we taught the Nazi's in Germany to combat socialism. We divided the poor by race and isolated them from each other to prevent them from communicating their common problems with each other.

America today continually portrays poverty as a race issue. When New Orleans was flooded in 2005, the press refused to show images of poor whites starving to death. They categorically refused to state that many of the poor did not own a car, did not have money to buy a bus ticket, and did not have enough food to feed their children if they left their homes. A review of basic food stamp data would have revealed to anyone, but the dead, that many of the citizens had no financial resources to fall back on.

The Republican oligarchy and the national security apparatus wanted those people to starve and die. After these poor people die, their accrued social security benefits will be transferred by Republican stooges to wealthy corporations and the landed gentry via tax benefits and below market agricultural department loans. From what we have seen on television, the national security apparatus was very successful in debilitating tens of thousands of poor African Americans. New Orleans was the first 24/7 recorded video testimony of affirmative incarceration policies in process. Affirmative incarceration is now documented via live television.

By taking a page out of Hitler's propaganda campaign against the Slavs in Europe, the popular press presents gaunt African Americans, illiterate Hispanics and babbling, dark-skinned Indians whenever it portrays poor people on television. The poor are routinely depicted as rabid rats, corpulent pigs, and thirsty leeches. Rarely are illiterate, single white females and their starving children (the vast majority of America's poor citizenry) shown.

By isolating the poor into distinct geographic regions (called school districts), identifiable by segregated zip codes, carrying distinct social security numbers, and having specific aptitude scores our government can easily track their movement, control their education and employment, and ultimately restrict their ability to communicate with the outside world.

Our country is the only nation on the planet that actually breeds poverty, crime and ignorance as a matter of national economic policy. Affirmative incarceration, denigging and feminization foster poverty and will result in the rise of Hindu supremacy in two decades. Without poverty, America could not keep its jails filled and its gallows functioning. Ultimately, the vast system of concentration camps keeps our supertanker hedge fund economy the envy of the industrialized world.

By forcing the poor to pay federal income taxes and providing them limited tax benefits, and then finding legal ways to murder them, our nation then redistributes this accrued income via various off-balance sheet and "black" accounts at the Federal Reserve system to the aristocracy in the isolated areas of the country where they actually live, such as Wyoming, Nebraska, and South Dakota. This is very similar to the policies put in place by long dead French kings to finance their vassals.

But with extant poverty, those in power would be worried about revolution and ultimately communism. No worries! To control the spread of communism, America enacted a vast public education infrastructure to establish color hierarchies during childhood and to obfuscate class differences among whites. To prevent identification with the poor, those who can afford to eat three meals a day are called the "middle class".

Consequently, the national security apparatus manufactures standardized tests, incarceration data, and income data to prove the innate inability of minorities and aborigines. Guidance counselors, teachers and principals are socialized to accept that the poor are always inferior. If they reject this notion, they will not receive promotions, vacations and sabbaticals that will enable them to enjoy the status aspects of suburban life.

School districts that look to remove members of the national security apparatus from their boards, teaching rolls, or administrative positions are routinely dissolved. Teachers who are supportive of African American intellectual growth are routinely given "below satisfactory" performance ratings. Principals who have high performing African American students must administer harder tests that include questions not supported by the curricula. Under all circumstances, African Americans must perform poorly for a publicly funded school district to even exist in our country today.

Moreover, poor children in the 21st century are given improper guidance to maintain the high wage levels of the majority. Fundamentally, WASP professionals (doctors, dentists, surgeons, lawyers, and managers) want to have the option of dealing with African Americans only if there is an economic necessity. But they do not want African Americans or Hispanics to establish themselves professionally in their own neighborhoods, as that would create the hierarchies of a community that would have the social, intellectual and financial resources to challenge the national security apparatus.

Integration largely removed the urban black professional and devastated middle class African American societies. Many of my students have a hard time believing that there use to be hundreds of African American legislators, professors, scientists, doctors, dentists, and lawyers prior to Jim Crow. The Department of Education, the FBI, and the NSA do not want these communities to return as our nation would have no reason to import hundreds of Middle Eastern scientists, thousands of Hindu doctors, and hundreds of thousands of Mexican fruit pickers every year. A caste system cannot exist if African Americans can form a community in their own neighborhoods.

So effective is this propaganda at controlling our society that teachers are "shocked and dismayed" that bright boys who are poor do not want to become scientists and engineers. Unable to fathom that these boys are actually human (even though some of them may have brown skin and black eyes), few teachers can comprehend that most poor boys have quickly determined that they will always be an oarsman on the slave ship, NC USA 1, or a sop sink cleaner in the grand American vomitorium. Thus, it is not surprising to me that many boys are unwilling to shed adolescence and even more reluctant to accept their genitalia.

More importantly poor boys are constantly provided endless propaganda to "voluntarily" join the military. Why wouldn't they? To be someone without joining the military would mean to take endless standardized tests and to be apart from their peers! All boys want to be men and to pass on their genetic potential to their offspring. God's goal for all of his sons is to be a father. God cannot guarantee wealth, but for most he can guarantee children. But the poor know that in America's bank-run consumption society, successful fatherhood is near impossible.

Standardized tests are administered primarily in America to maintain African American inability and to foster and prolong poverty. Teaching and guidance methodologies are developed to retard African American learning⁷⁵. Advanced math and probability must never be taught to the poor so that they can keep buying losing lottery tickets and not realize that they are paying a regressive income tax. Government budgets, standardized tests and statistics must be obfuscated to hide large imbalances in spending to poor school districts⁷⁶.

Social Security trust funds must be set up to facilitate the transfer of benefits paid for by the poor upon their extermination in our concentration camps to wealthy pharmaceutical corporations via massive depreciation and research and development deductions. Most of our European-American aristocracy (the vassals of the petrochemical estate, the former princes of now democratic republics, the excommunicated rajahs of ⁷⁵ This is why there is so much homework in schools today. Administrators are fully aware that African American children live in single-family homes and lack books, computers and educated siblings.

Asia, and the failed sheiks of araby) pay no federal tax or local income tax⁷⁷ as most of their money are held in numbered accounts in Switzerland, Bahrain, and Liechtenstein and readily transferred to Citibank, UBS, and JP Morgan for their use. So successful have our genocidal policies been in nurturing fantastic levels of wealth, that the world's aristocracy is actively moving to the Unites States. They are fully aware that in a caste society, there are only rich and poor.

Zoning must also be set up to remove affordable housing and access to public transportation for African Americans. Bus schedules must be made up to eliminate early morning and evening access to business districts and magnet schools for minorities. Employment policies must be set up to delay pension vestments and health benefits for all minorities. Laws must be set up to facilitate the legal harassment of minorities by the police and government administrators.

Rent schedules and tax rates must also be set up to prevent savings and investment among minorities. Health statistics must not be decipherable so that the Dr. Mengele's of our country can eliminate undesirable poor people and not be charged for crimes against humanity. The affirmative incarceration and denigging infrastructure needed to monitor and maintain this insidious social planning costs hundreds of billions of dollars a year to implement. It is a critical portion of our GDP and cannot be sustained in a world where oil costs more than $55 per barrel.

Field Marshall Goebbels, Chairman Stalin, Chairman Mao and General Jan Smuts would all be proud. Today, African Americans are put into large gulags (in the vernacular they are called housing projects) with helicopters flying overhead, police cars constantly surrounding their neighborhoods, and bullets flying eerily like fruit bats into the night. Guns and drugs are readily sold in front of blind and deaf police officers.

Poor children eat and drink food tainted with lead. They breathe air embedded with benzene and asbestos particulates. Many complexes are filled with vermin throughout. There are no accessible hospitals or supermarkets in their neighborhoods. And forget about playgrounds. The few that exist are typically covered with drug paraphernalia, used condoms, bullet casings and shattered liquor bottles.

The poor live in a density designed to provoke violence, as it is the ultimate hope of politicians (and their military supporters) that these people systematically kill each other. The laws of the jungle only apply here. Compassion and love are in short supply. Guns, knives, automatic rifles and ammunition are sold along with Coke and Doritos. The police will only show up, wearing Rolex watches, Bruno Maglis and carrying expensive satellite phones, if someone white has been killed. The Negro Beirut's that dot America's landscape are a testament to anyone who has eyes open that equal opportunity in America is unadulterated bullshit! America's crony capitalists in the Middle East and Japan have largely financed a system of concentration camps whose primary function each day is to murder the poor⁷⁸.

For the black man to be equal to the white man would be against the core ethos of what America believes in and what our national security apparatus has practiced over the last 230 years. This lies at the heart of why India is a clear and present danger to the United States. Fundamentally, our nation cannot tolerate India's ability to promote literacy to its urban poor. To educate the poor, brown-skinned Hindus, brown-skinned Muslims and brown-skinned aborigines and then to provide them with jobs that will enable them to set up households is anathema to the Pentagon planners who orchestrate the activities of our affirmative incarceration and denigging institutions.

Our NSA, FBI, Federal Reserve, CIA and police departments throughout America cannot conjecture as to what will happen when African Americans demand similar democracy and transparency. If the law applied to the national security apparatus—it does not—members of law enforcement, Congress, and the military would be charged, prosecuted and executed for crimes against humanity. They live in fear of judgment and cling to the Nuremberg defense unaware that state sponsored murder is a capital crime. That is why the FBI is fighting change everyday! It is highly likely that in the near future, thousands of federal officials will be prosecuted and incarcerated for genocide. Such an abomination--imagine equal rights for dark skinned people--cannot be tolerated by us, Israel, Australia, or our European and Latin American allies.

Because of its lack of caste bias, India remains a clear and present danger to the national security apparatus of the United States of America. If India utilizes the same propaganda techniques that our national security apparatus used against Russia, the effects on our law enforcement and military would be catastrophic. Hundreds of thousands of our law enforcement live in fear that they will be held responsible one day for state sponsored murder on the Indian television equivalent of "60 Minutes". More are in fear that their actions will be portrayed as genocide and crimes against humanity. What if Indian newspapers demand that police officers and bankers in Tulsa, Oklahoma or New Orleans, Louisiana be charged with crimes against humanity?

Just imagine if India advised our mortal enemies that so many of our boys are homosexuals and eunuchs. Would our adversaries be afraid of a soldier who in the future will cut off his genitals to become a woman? How would other army's regulars fight knowing that its enemies will become women in the future? I would think they would fight with gusto. Pentagon serfs are having nightmares that they too will be incarcerated for crimes against humanity and that their artificial credentials revealed in a viable press for what they are, a charade. Therefore, for India to exist, the United States cannot exist. Thus, India must be destroyed!

We have now as a nation emplaced the steps that will result in the destruction of the Hindu state. We have gradually emplaced a Strontium Noose around India similar to the Iron Curtain that we placed around the former USSR and its satellites. It will take a little time, but the hope of our planners is full-scale nuclear war between Pakistan and India. The process for this war will take at least three years to implement, and it will be described in Book Two of this series, The Rise Of The Fourth Reich.

Few Americans are aware that India is also the largest Muslim country on the planet. It has more Muslims than Indonesia. It also has more Muslims than all of the Middle East. If the Muslims felt threatened they could easily throw a massive wrench into the Hindu Third Way. What a sight the destruction of India's one billion people would be? It would make the looting in Iraq look like a pep rally for a local high school football team. Genocide would be ridiculously easy to implement in India as the British have centuries of copious notes for our national security apparatus to review.

Few are aware that India was looking to sign a memorandum of understanding to build a gas pipeline from Iran to India prior to our invasion of Iraq. Russia is also willing to build an even larger pipeline to India. In addition, India's oil industry was also looking to Iraq, Qatar, as well as Libya. Having this gas, coupled with its future hydroelectric resources, India would surpass America's GDP by 2023 based on preliminary statistics from Trademark Universal, Incorporated's Consulting Division.

India is also the world's largest legal exporter of opium and its derivatives. This is unthinkable to our State Department, the conductor of America's apartheid orchestra⁷⁹ because India will not sell copious amounts of heroin via back channels to narco-traffickers. Thus, India refuses to be a participant in the genocidal policy of affirmative incarceration of America's minority population that is fostered by La Cosa Nostra. Consequently, our national security apparatus cannot militarily support India's legal drug trade.

⁷⁹ No one in America has noticed that no one has resigned from the State Department in protest over our policies in Afghanistan and Iraq. Why? Because it is necessary to neutralize India by any means necessary!

To make money legally from the sale of prescription narcotics is anathema to the national security apparatus. Over 5% of India's GDP⁸⁰ is due to the legal heroin trade. The gateway to Europe for narcotics is through Kashmir, through the Badlands of the Hindu Kush and ultimately through Afghanistan. Our invasion of Afghanistan and control of Pakistan has greatly disrupted the expansion of India's legal opium trade.

Thus, for affirmative incarceration to continue in our country, it was necessary to neutralize Afghanistan. Furthermore, to put pressure on the Iranians to not trade with India, we had to invade Iraq. Surprisingly, the Indian citizenry are just as unaware as most Americans the threat a democratic and free Republic of India poses to the West's national security apparatus. The alacrity at which America has implemented a pincer formation around Iran has forced India to drop its gas pipeline plans.

With Iran, Iraq, and Afghanistan effectively neutralized, only Pakistan remains. And that was easy to fix. Our stooge is currently running the show. Al Queda operates freely in Pakistan because its ringleaders were allies of Pakistan's military intelligence unit, the ISI, for nearly two decades! The ISI was the go between for our CIA and the freedom fighters of the Northern Alliance, as well as the Taliban. Pakistan actually created plausible deniability for our shenanigans in the Middle East and Afghanistan.

Is Al Queda real? The evidence here, within this book, states that Al Queda is not real. Why would Al Queda overthrow Saudi Arabia's caste-based society where its own members, due to their lineage and skin color, would be at the top of the caste hierarchy? As in Europe's caste society, the best jobs in Saudi Arabia go to the gentry.

⁸⁰ Please take into account the abundant multiplier effect of untaxed trade (factor of 10)

Our news media cannot explain the raison d'être of Al Queda to anyone who truly understands Islam and its caste system. If you also understand why and for whom Israel exists, the Islamists' desire to destroy Israel makes no sense⁸¹. Destroying Israel would invite communism to Saudi Arabia. But there are no poor people in Saudi Arabia for communism to benefit. All of the poor people in Saudi Arabia are Indian.

Recall that in a caste system skin color is all that matters. And education cannot lighten the color of one's skin⁸² in Saudi Arabia. Bin Laden would not be number one, but at his stratospheric level of wealth does the pole position matter? So Al Queda makes no economic or military sense to an objective observer who is aware of the role of Israel and Saudi Arabia to our national security apparatus.

Saudi Arabia is our biggest ally and is the linchpin for all Middle East policy. The Saudis have pushed the conservative view of Islam to Afghanistan and Pakistan, assisting our national security apparatus in laying the ideological basis for the Strontium Noose that is slowly being put around India. The three wars that India fought with Pakistan were all started by Pakistan. To facilitate the internal destruction of India, nuclear secrets from our allies, Israel and South Africa, have been passed onto Pakistan to enable it to build long-range nuclear missiles. The Chinese had little to do with it.

⁸¹ Israel exists solely to maintain our partnership and alliance with the House of Saud.

⁸² This is also true in America's caste system and was also true in India's caste system.

Furthermore, to encourage the possibility of accidental nuclear engagement between India and Pakistan, long-range attack aircraft have also been sold to Pakistan⁸³. Simultaneously, our Drug Enforcement Agency has turned a blind eye to the brazen expansion of Pakistan's heroin trade. Pakistani heroin will eventually be refined and transported to America's gulags and concentration camps to support our country's affirmative incarceration policies. Without our national security apparatus's incessant need for affirmative incarceration to maintain the statistical illusion of low unemployment and high housing values, the Pakistanis would have no ready market for their heroin. Ultimately without the US narcotics market, Pakistan would have no hard currency to pay for American weaponry⁸⁴.

Pakistan has also received covert nuclear aid from Israel with limited sanctions from the United States. What is curious to me is how Dr. Abdul Q. Khan, the mastermind of the Pakistani atomic arsenal, got the triggers? This is the dirty little secret of the atomic weapons trade. Nuclear weapons are easy to build, but nearly impossible to detonate from a safe distance.

One cannot just dream these triggers up. It would take decades for any nation to develop the technology. Without an actual remote controlled trigger, Pakistan could not deliver the weapon without fear of the weapon blowing up in Pakistan. These triggers are highly complex to even manufacture in America; far more difficult than the plutonium core. My own view is that Israel provided the initial "samples" under a licensing arrangement.

⁸³ The F-16 can easily be modified within three hours to carry the modified Chinese Scud that Dr. Khan has designed. The airplane can easily evade all existing Indian air-defense weaponry. The F-16 can penetrate Indian airspace and can launch its nuclear payload, destroying either New Delhi or Bombay within 90 minutes.

So great have been the violations of safeguards against nuclear proliferation that it behooves me as to why we are going after Osama Bin Laden. It is clear that our main enemy is Dr. Khan assuming the popular notion that radical Islam is the enemy. But radical Islam is not the enemy to our national security apparatus, India is.

So why does not the CIA send in a drone plane and kill Dr. Khan? It cannot as the end game, the destruction and obliteration of India, would not happen were Dr. Khan, a Pakistani hero, murdered by CIA operatives. Dr. Khan is unaware that he is this century's Archduke Ferdinand. It is likely that he will be murdered in the next three years and that murder will be blamed on India.

World War III will quickly follow. And it cannot be stopped. Our national security apparatus' video simulations have convinced Pakistan's military agencies that their nation will survive full-scale nuclear war with India. Our mathematical models have even emulated ocean currents and the monsoons. Nuclear winter according to all of our Pentagon's digital cartoons is survivable. Most Pakistanis are not aware at all how the Lord Louis Mountbatten's of a new century are manipulating them again.

What will Al Queda do after it gets rid of the infidels from Saudi Arabia? Will Arabs actually clean their own camel sheds, grow their own crops, or tend their own houses? Will Arab kings and mullahs arm peasant soldiers and ambitious generals like a prior neighboring regime did with a young Sunni soldier named Saddam Hussein? I doubt it. Few Americans understand that Saudis do not view equality as part of their cultural ethos.

America is the only country where middle class Muslim women from the Middle East actually do their own laundry, and clean their own kitchens. Only poor Muslim women complete these activities in the Middle East. The thought of wealthy women cleaning houses and tending cars is against the ethos of the Middle East⁸⁵.

Incredulous as the facts sound, the elusive phantom Muslim menace grows. Somehow Al Queda can move money with alacrity. But where is Al Queda's millions held? The US Army has advised an ignorant public that it is carried around on camels and in barrels of honey. Jesus, if this is so effective at evading our military, why aren't the drug cartels utilizing the same technique to evade our local police. How can our spy satellites know who is talking with President Vladimir Putin in his hotel room in Minsk, but they cannot access Al Queda's money transfers?

How does Al Queda hold meetings? How is Al Queda able to overcome US spy technologies? Are they speaking in codes in subterranean closets? Why does it not have representative leadership in a neutral country, like other terrorist organizations?

Few Americans understand that the Saudis are masters of caste-manipulation. Ultimately to divide and conquer a society, the haves must be discriminated against and the have-nots must be favored. In Islam, all Muslims are equal, except those who are poor and dark brown. Therefore to favor Indian Muslims with visas would undermine the ethos of many Middle Eastern countries. Indian Muslims would see the vast immorality of the kingdoms of the Middle East and communicate back their observations to their Muslim relatives in the developing world. Not only are the kingdoms of the Middle East filled with servants from India, but also their ranks are replete with Sudanese mechanics, Sri Lankan bus drivers and Phillipino coolies.

The Middle East's largest groups of infidels are Indian Hindus and Christians. So why the criticism of the West? In the Muslim caste system, infidels who are white are human. Brown infidels are not! These are the same values we adhere to in America⁸⁶. Shared values enables our national security apparatus to get along well with Saudi Arabia.

How can Al Queda function so easily? Money is moved with ease. Are there no laws to govern large money transfers? The sums that are needed to orchestrate terror like they have been doing cannot easily be done without state support. Few Americans understand that the internet was developed by our military to orchestrate nuclear war. State support can hide email addresses and money transfers from electronic sleuths.

Few can understand what I am about to tell you now! There is a way to send emails without addresses using military protocols long ago established by the NSA and the CIA. What I mean to say is that you can send email without it being registered on servers. I know because I met the NSA programmers who developed ⁸⁶ Sure our Constitution says we are all equal. Our Constitution and our judiciary has also validated a vast system of concentration camps, far larger than the Nazis, specifically designed to eliminate the African American population. If you look at our Dr. Mengele's, far more poor children have died in our medical system since World War II, than the Nazi's killed in their concentration camps!

these codes! I was surprised that the military had declassified it. In fact, packets of data can move invisibly. Money transfers can also occur invisibly on the internet. Al Queda is moving money over the internet using established NSA and CIA protocols. Herein lies the vast conspiracy that is Al Queda!

Why else would the President's Praetorian Guard, the Secret Service and the NSA, not immediately evacuate President Bush to a safe harbor on September 11, 2001? Because the Secret Service was advised by the NSA that it was updated by Pakistan's ISI a week earlier that no planes would be a threat to the President. In fact, Pakistan's ISI was fully aware of who were manning the planes as many of them were debriefed by their agents days prior to September 11. Pakistan knew where the planes were going because Mohammed Atta worked for their ISI! To confirm the location of planes, our NORAD unit was able to confirm that it did not detect any radio signals (emitted from all airplane radars surreptitiously) that are typically broadcast by airplanes to NORAD in flight, even if the transponders are turned off.

The Vice President did not invent the United States national security protocols⁸⁷. They have been in place for decades. No planes were in Washington DC as NORAD would be able to tell where the plane was heading and would have to force the evacuation of NSA headquarters, the real power behind our totalitarian government.

Why would a terrorist organization blow up the Pentagon, a military target as opposed to a civilian target? It just does not make sense unless you realize that a plane did not hit the Pentagon on September ⁸⁷ Just like his predecessor did not invent the internet.

11, 2001. Do not be fooled by the CGI that was broadcast by CNN. More importantly, NORAD tracks Washington DC aerospace 24/7 and it knows exactly what hit the Pentagon. I do to. Anything that flies below radar still creates yaw, a massive flow of air and heat. Yaw increases as you approach the speed of sound. When an object exceeds the speed of sound, its yaw can be readily tracked by our spy satellites and also by our listening stations in Virginia. Moreover, the eavesdropping equipment at the Russian Embassy in Washington would have also easily picked up this yaw.

No one is speaking because every government in NATO knows what is actually going on. The millennia-old battle is resurfacing. All of the apartheid aristocracies of the West (America, the Middle East, Europe, and Australia) make up what I call the House of Shem. Shem, the mythical son of Noah, fathered Abraham who fathered Isaac and Ishmael. The progeny of these two men went on to find the Jewish, Christian and Muslim faiths.

The ancient teachings of Shiva, the mythical Hindu deity, are the basis of Hinduism and Buddhism. Unique among these faiths is their core ethos of love, equality, acceptance and compassion. These two religions fostered all of the religious disciplines, philosophies and teachings of India. Indian beliefs can be assigned for practical purposes to the House of Shiva.

Thus, a free and democratic India, which allows the poor to go to school and make a living, is anathema to the apartheid states of the House of Shem. Furthermore, Islam and Judaism living with equality among Hindus is against the ethos of the Middle East.

Thus, it is in the national security interests of the House of Shem to destroy the House of Shiva.

This makes sense if you can comprehend that India must be destroyed for America's national security apparatus to survive. Would the NSA and the FBI murder American civilians to accomplish this? Absolutely. They have done so in the past! They are legally empowered to for the purposes of national security. Affirmative incarceration, denigging and feminization are de facto policies fostered by our national security apparatus.

Under "black" projects, countless Americans have been killed to conceal and protect the military's overt control of our school districts, universities, science labs, and industry in the United States. This writer is firmly convinced that the national security apparatus killed the Rev. Martin Luther King⁸⁸, as it could not find an alternative to affirmative incarceration that would placate the aristocracy that continues to support the unbridled growth of our military. It was only after every major African American leader was assassinated could a caste system be forcefully implemented via the expansion of affirmative incarceration.

Not surprisingly, many of the findings of various Congressional commissions on King's murder have been classified for national security purposes⁸⁹. The analyses of the crises we faced in the 1960's were buried because our nation faces many enemies from within the national security apparatus. Organized crime and the drug cartels continue to exist in the United States. Clearly, these groups have the tacit support from the upper echelons of our national security apparatus⁹⁰.

⁸⁹ Today our military no longer needs to assassinate people with bullets. It has developed weapons that are in aerosols that can induce heart attacks. The chemicals turn into water, trace ammonia and hydrogen within thirty minutes of death. Autopsies reveal a heart attack.

Few Americans are aware that the Anthrax Mailer could have easily targeted Georgia's UPS hub or Tennessee's FedEx hub, both of which are only a few hours away from where the deadly letters were mailed. By putting it into a FedEx or UPS box, he could have killed hundreds, possibly thousands. I mean if he could manufacture anthrax, I am sure he could have gotten a stolen credit card number from the internet to utilize FedEx. Thousands of these numbers are on sale each day in Europe. Why would he, especially if he was a white supremacist, want to kill only a few people, when he could have killed hundreds of African Americans at the distribution hubs for these major corporations on the overnight shift.

Why would the mailer, a white supremacist, choose to mail his terror letters around the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday? It is just as easy to send a UPS or FedEx box as it is a letter. So why did he choose a letter? If the package were mailed to either commercial depot, hundreds would have died. Why wouldn't he do that? After all, a terrorist would want to kill as many people as possible. But for some reason this terrorist knew how the mail was handled. He knew what the mail carriers would be wearing and when they ate their meals. He also knew the race distribution by shift of those who carried the mail. Clearly, the terrorist knew America's caste hierarchies well.

⁹⁰ I often tell children not to get addicted to drugs (barbiturates, marijuana, and heroin), as it will result in lengthy jail sentences.

By putting it into the mail system at night, he fully knew that few white people would be killed. I mean had he killed hundreds of white postal workers, an investigation would occur that would make "Shock And Awe" look like a game of hide and seek. Why would the terrorist pick a known pathogen that an area scientist would be a specialist in?

Hundreds of FBI agents and millions of dollars spent cannot replicate how this high-tech Oswald carried out the act! Short of torture, they cannot get the alleged perpetrator to admit how he did it. Most likely because he did not do it. Sure, he had the intelligence, but he did not have the financial and logistical capability to carry out such an attack.

If he had committed the crime, anthrax spores would be in the grass in front of his house, in the fibers of his toilet paper tube, in the crevices of the wooden planks of his house, in his carpet, on all of his suits and ties, in his car's nooks and crannies, and more importantly in the cracks of his house where the sewer line connected. Absolutely. There were no spores because no single man could have cleaned all of these areas and left no trace of weaponized anthrax. Recall that the spores grow geometrically. Just wiping them induces more growth. He could not have carried this attack out!

Not a single investigative reporter in America has looked at who would benefit from the anthrax attacks. Not a single journalist tried to replicate the attack. Was it because certain internet companies were advertising heavily in their papers? Few journalists mentioned that scores of internet companies were on the brink of collapse during the fourth quarter of the year when this attack occurred. If it were not for the anthrax attacks, forcing people to order via the internet, New York's moneyed Brahmins would have destroyed many internet companies, including Amazon.com, and their backers, such as Kleiner, Perkins. The paper wealth of West Coast billionaires would have been just that. Not a single newspaper reporter seemed to notice that all of these internet companies used UPS and FedEx, as opposed to the US Postal Service, to carry their packages.

Suddenly after the attacks, Americans refused to go to post offices to ship their products. They would not open their mailboxes. Millions of items were ordered on the internet by individuals who were terrified of receiving anything from their mailwomen. Our media, the propaganda arm of the national security apparatus, gave up on the story, as it knows that as long as people are working, they have no time to ask questions. The public just has no time to sit down and think.

For some strange reason, the FBI never published what it would cost to create such a weapon and carry out such an attack. Probably because the FBI is a protector of the aristocracy and cannot reveal to the public the insane amount of money the anthrax attack cost to carry out. I estimate it at close to $13,350,000. No terrorist can afford that kind of money. No white supremacist would waste that amount of money to kill a couple of African Americans. Whoever did this had real wealth, real know how and a lot of knowledgeable personnel to hide his tracks.

Clearly, a disenfranchised member of our aristocracy carried out the attack. Now you see the conundrum faced by the FBI. Sworn to protect the wealthy, the FBI have no tools to prosecute them. Thus, our nation is being torn within. Just like Greece, Rome and Imperial China before its collapse, our national security apparatus (all military and law enforcement agencies) dominates the employment landscape of our nation.

Billions of dollars of illegal narcotics are sold in the gulags and concentration camps of the United States every month to facilitate affirmative incarceration. So many caucasian police officers, caucasian district attorneys and caucasian judges, and yet so little crime in the caucasian population. How come so many district attorneys are driving Cadillacs and Mercedes in rural towns and sending their kids to private schools in New England? Where is the money coming from? From the affirmative incarceration and extermination of the poor.

Affirmative incarceration is the de facto policy for dealing with the deflationary aspects of Hindu supremacy domestically. The need for the expansion of imprisonment has also led to the need for more and more prisoners, especially minority drug couriers. Otherwise whom will our national security apparatus arrest for drug crimes? Surely, not members of the aristocracy.

Few Americans are aware that the Columbian and Mexican drug cartels have divided the United States. Why are they, as well as La Cosa Nostra, able to easily maneuver within the local national security apparatus⁹¹ to distribute narcotics to the poor? My opinion is that our national security apparatus has been corrupted by narco-traffickers. If not, how are they permitted to regularly penetrate our borders and set up recruitment networks for drug couriers!

⁹¹ Of course our law enforcement officers, who make on average $35,000 per year can never be corrupted. Just ask Secretary of Homeland Security nominee and former NYPD Police Commissioner, Bernard Kerrick! He regularly ate with known associates of La Cosa Nostra.

Other factors also play into our national security apparatus's hand. Rampant obesity and the diseases associated with an elderly population have reduced the demand for beef, fruit juices, alcohol, and sugar. The state of New York is the largest consumer of beef, orange juice, liquor and sugar! States that manufacture these raw materials-- California, Virginia, Florida and Texas--are greatly clamoring for more of the wealth of the richest state in the union, New York. Unfortunately, affirmative incarceration, denigging, and feminization have reached their zenith in these states. These states simply cannot build any more concentration camps, as they do not have the local income to support them! Just like the fuel bill for Hitler's death camps did him in, the oil costs for our own vast gulag and concentration camp system will eventually lead to the end of our democracy.

Finally, multiple wars have to be fought to maintain the billion-dollar output of the vast defense enterprises in these agricultural states. Thus, these states can only increase their wealth by replicating the banking industry and pharmaceuticals infrastructure of the Northeast. But we already have so many banks and drug companies. However, these states could build industry if New York's industry disappeared or was blown up by terrorists.

Many a politician has faced pressure in these Southern states to increase higher paying jobs for the McMansions that are the signs of success in America. In addition, many American corporations have vast wealth, which they are not utilizing to pay higher wages and benefits in the United States. American corporations have over $1 trillion (yes, $1,000 billion) sitting aside collecting interest.

Thus, our electorate is being bamboozled. By using these vast hordes of cash to lubricate the halls of Congress and state legislatures, our aristocracy faces no legislative oversight. By engaging in the elaborate soft dollar honorarium schemes that have put the children of reporters into top colleges and expensive private high schools, they have muzzled anyone who has the power to bark at them. By providing lucrative careers to women, they have also gagged the one sex who cried out against maltreatment. But our national security apparatus could never have dreamed how powerful the internet would be in the future

With the likelihood that affirmative incarceration will likely end, many corporations are actively seeking to set themselves up in Bermuda or Hong Kong to avoid future legal problems in the United States. After all, they have to avoid being labeled a complicit participant in crimes against humanity. Their wealth is only guaranteed as long as America deals with the deflationary aspects of rising Hindu supremacy in a military manner.

The last thing our corporations and our aristocracy want to do is to pay more taxes or to pay more wages to deal with Asian manufacturing deflation. Someone has to die, they reason to themselves. At the end of the day, they rather sit and play their guitar and watch the poor burn and drown just like the grandson of Emperor Augustus (our own corn-fed Nero) did when Hurricane Katrina rolled in. Eat cake, his daughters shouted!

Clearly, America is facing several issues from many different fronts. Our nation is dealing with the same forces it dealt with in the 19th century as well as in the 20th century. We are in a new century with new types of robber barons, utilizing sophisticated propaganda techniques to manipulate us.

As the American experiment slowly ends to deal with the deflationary aspect of rising Hindu supremacy, our aristocracy will look to the British type of system. In the next few years, we will formally install our own WASP aristocracy; it will no longer be de facto. That is why so many princes and dukes are buying apartments in New York City. How else can the wealthy preserve their power after millions of men die in the Middle East!

After all, deflation is not a short-term monetary problem, but a long-term demographic conundrum. Thus, financial institutions will continue to manipulate our country. After a calamity, they will do their best to deny responsibility. In addition, the Baby Boomers are in decline. Over the next twenty years, over 75 million Americans will die of the illnesses associated with physical deterioration. Banks, by appealing to the elderly's basest instincts in the prime of their life, as well as our growing European-American aristocracy have convinced the post-World War II generation that they can have instant wealth without working harder for it. The national security apparatus's propaganda arm, advertising agencies, has convinced this generation that responsibility is just a word and that free enterprise will raise their children. These firms are behaving the same way they did when the Romans, the Greeks, the Persians, the Ottomans, the Mayans, and the Mandarins were at their zenith.

American fathers understand that the only wealth any society truly has is the intellectual capital and moral capital that it builds in its children. But more children require more federal funding for schools, health care, and affordable places to live. Furthermore, children cannot be bred by homosexuals or women who do not have uteruses.

By attributing interest costs to every aspect of human development, banks have convinced our population at large that homosexuality is good for the economy because the practice increases consumption. For those men uncomfortable with homosexuality, banks have financed the vast psychosocial and medical infrastructure that can now afford confused boys the option of becoming a eunuch. Moreover, our vast media outlets are encouraging just in time family formation. These stooges advise us that we can purchase light skinned children from developing countries when we want them. If the children are emotionally damaged, we have a concentration camp system that can excise them from our day-to-day lives.

Marriage is not only portrayed as unpleasant, but our banks also portray it as an expensive step in their pedestrian print advertising. They have been fully supported by our national security apparatus. Banks brought in Hindu slaves by the planeload and chained them to CAD stations and operating rooms and told them one day if they work hard enough, they too can walk freely on the corporate plantation...Help us, help you...Help us, reengineer America...Bathroom breaks are allowed only once every four hours...Don't worry if you are stressed, just take a COX-2 pill or an MAOI inhibitor...Still feeling poorly, maybe it is your testicles that are causing you discomfort...Sahib, there are bathrooms!...Leroy Mohammed Baraka, why are you chewing gum in class...WE ARE IN CONTROL...Are you sure mam that your retarded daughter was raped by a police captain's son and his friends and it was video taped by them, as well...Save enough money so you do not have to work...Take the blue pill...Baraka, if I see you again in my office, I will have you expelled from

Our financial institutions have replaced the physical chains of bondage with the psychological fear of poverty associated with employment at will and the consequent loss of ephemeral pension plans. This apprehension and dynamic tension is needed to install a caste society.

Ultimately, it will push our society into a deadly war. We, as a nation, are preparing for global nuclear war. Our society's power brokers never went to war. They never bayoneted a man in his throat. They never held a teenager in their arms as his blood, urine and feces poured out of him. They never ever saw the violence that frustrated soldiers unleash on civilian populations during heated battles.

None of our female Senators ever went to war either. They have never held a child whose penis was blown off by a land mine, or whose limbs were forcibly removed because he begged for K-rations, or a girl who cries into the night because her phantom leg itches. No Senator has ever heard the banshee wails of a father holding his dead son's macerated lifeless body in his arms. I assure you, brown skinned people love their children too. No female Senator ever witnessed the hundreds of rapes carried out on civilian populations or the endless starvation and deadly dysentery that are brought on by armed conflict.

For fear of being called weak, they called for war. The once extant societies of the Romans, the Greeks, the Persians, and the Ottomans no longer thrive because they did the same thing we did. Their civilizations died years ago awash in high real estate values, homosexuality and internecine violence.

Now we march on the same narcissistic road that so many nations before us traveled on. Unwilling to fathom our planet's collective humanity, we look to maintain and continue our hegemony. Guided by spreadsheets and MBA's, as opposed to sheep's livers and divine oracles, we cannot lose. We must keep those illiterate monkeys down. Onward, Christian soldiers! Led by Jesus, as opposed to Mithra, Apollo or Zeus, we will be victorious!

Now you the reader are fully aware why we had to invade Iraq. And why we will invade Iran. And why within a matter of five years, all life will cease on this planet.

Tom Mathew is the founder of three profitable multinational companies. Trademark Universal, Inc is his current venture and it is scheduled for its IPO in 2009. His second company was SE Finance Company, which was sold, prior to its IPO, to Southern Company for an undisclosed 10-figure amount. His first company, Compu-Craze Inc., started when he was 24, is currently in registration and is scheduled to go public on the Mumbai Exchange in 2006.

The author is a banker by training. Although Mr. Mathew has lent money into the leveraged buyouts of RH Macy's, General Instrument and Del Monte Foods, his specialty is the building of large multi-billion dollar power plants and petrochemical infrastructure throughout the surface of planet Earth (Canada, Brazil, Asia, Africa, Europe, the United States and Australia) and he is intimately aware of the power needs of Asia and the Middle East. He has played an integral role in the development of multi-billion dollar partnerships and investments that continue to promote the growth of America's military-industrial complex (primarily benefiting General Electric, US Steel, ETS, Southern Company, Texaco, Bechtel, MCA Universal, Exxon Mobil, the US Navy, Kimberly Clarke, AT&T, and IBM) worldwide. Mr. Mathew has also played a role in the planning and financing of hundreds of our nation's cities, school districts, hospitals, universities, transportation hubs, stadiums, and waste treatment facilities as a rating analyst for Moody's Investors Service.

Mr. Mathew is a graduate of New York University's Leonard N. Stern School of Business (BS, MBA). He lives and consults in New York.
